Opposition To Treaty Growing In Congress

By M. H. MCINTYRE

OPPOSITION to the London Treaty, almost negligible at first, is developing and speedy ratification, once apparently assured, now appears to face a real fight in the Senate.

There are five outstanding reasons for the growing opposition:

1. Failure of the administration to give definite assurances that the appropriations will be made for the ships needed to bring the Navy up to Treaty strength.

2. Divergent views on disputed points in the provisions of the pact as outlined by Secretary Stimson and Secretary Adams.

3. Dissatisfaction over the explanations for the yielding to Great Britain and Japan on the 8-inch gun cruiser controversy, involving an abandonment of the American policy with respect to the need for this type ship.

4. Yielding to Japan's demand for an increased ratio in cruiser tonnage and equality in submarines.

5. The so-called Escalator clause which permits England freedom of action to build additional ships if "forced" by the programs of other European powers.

As the hearings, which started before the Foreign Relations Committee on May 12 and before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee the following day, progressed, the dissatisfaction on the part of several members of the two committees has grown more marked.

Secretary Stimson, Secretary Adams, Adm. W. V. Pratt and Rear Adm. Hilary P. Jones held the spotlight during the first four days of the hearings. The opening session was devoid of fireworks, the session being taken up with Mr. Stimson's statement, which various editorial comment has classified as "elementary" and as "kindergarten" treatment of his subject.

Subsequent meetings developed a number of interesting facts, one of these being that while the two secretaries both approved the treaty there was a wide variance between their views on certain important phases of it.

The Secretary of State stoutly defends the treaty, "takes his hat off" to the Japanese for their attitude, explained the recession from the American policy of 8-inch guns cruisers by stating that the delegation preferred the 6-inch gun type and acclaimed the British concession of our right to modernize and elevate the guns of our battleships as a "trade" for our yielding on our stand for the construction of a modern battleship.

The Secretary of the Navy also defended the treaty, taking the ground that he believed the advantages of the agreement, offering hope of parity with Great Britain, outweighed any objections to it. He also stated frankly that he leaned to the view of the General Board on the importance of the 8-inch gun cruiser and that every effort had been made to increase the number allowed the United States and that the final result was a compromise.

It was shown by his testimony, as has been generally accepted, that he had nothing to do with the selection of the naval delegation, which has been frequently referred to as "hand picked," and it was further elicited by the hearings that the General Board has had no voice in the negotiations.

It was brought out that the annual report of the Secretary of Navy for 1929 showed that gun elevation on three battleships had been authorized as far back at 1927 and that the State Department had been advised that Great Britain would raise no objection though adhering to the opinion that gun elevation was a technical violation of the Washington Treaty. This confirms the impression that little impor-

Pay Committee May Act In Closing Days

WHILE no conclusive action of Congress on the service pay problem is even remotely hoped for by those following the developments, the opinion was expressed this week by members of the Joint Congressional Committee that the hearings might be completed and even a report drafted by the committee before the members go back to their homes for the summer recess.

Representative French, vice chairman of the committee, said that while there are no official developments that he believes personally that hearings will be started shortly and that they will be concluded rapidly and a report prepared before this session is over. Then it will be possible to press for immediate action when Congress reconvenes in the Fall.

At the next meeting of the committee it is generally understood that Senator Jones will ask to be relieved of the chairmanship of the joint body and that Senator Reed will be selected to succeed him. The problem is one in which Senator Jones has had little previous experience, while Senator Reed is thoroughly conversant with the intricacies of the situation and deeply interested in its solution.

A persistent rumor has been making the rounds that the President had asked the Bureau of Efficiency to make a study of the fairness of the 1908 pay schedule, upon which the entire report of the Interdepartmental Pay Board is based, and that the bureau had submitted a report. It has been learned definitely that there is no basis of fact for the rumor. Mr. French says that he had asked for some information from the bureau but that no new studies had been sought and nothing affecting the 1908 schedules.

Senator Reed has been kept very occupied with the various investigations into the Naval Treaty since his return from London and undoubtedly he will do little on the pay committee until he is through with the treaty.

Navy Appropriation Bill Nearing Action By House

THE House Naval Appropriation bill, carrying $379,036,086 as well as contract authorization for aircraft in the amount of $10,000,000 drew near to a vote this week, after being for several days the principal business of the House. A total of $49,400,000 is assigned for new construction during 1931.

Consideration of the measure was begun by the House on Friday, May 9, when Rep. Burton L. French of Idaho, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee which drew the bill, made a broad explanatory statement concerning it in which he indicated the part that the London conference had played in influencing the subcommittee.

The bill does not call for a construction program up to the limits set by the London treaty, Rep. French taking the view that the fixing of limits does not constitute an obligation to build to those limits and that in view of an agreement having been reached conservatism will probably mark the construction activities of the other powers.

Rep. Britten of Illinois, spokesman for those who believe the United States should build up to the treaty limit, replied to Mr. French that if the administration had not contemplated building up to the limit, it would never have agreed to the signing of the London agreement.

What It Would Cost

In discussing the matter of construction policy, Mr. French said in part:

"It is possible to give a fair outline (Please turn to Back Page)

President To Review U. S. Fleet On May 20

THE United States Fleet will be reviewed by President Hoover on Tuesday off the Virginia Capes. Under consideration by the President for many weeks, the presidential review, originally predicted by the Army and Navy Journal, will finally come to pass.

President Hoover will leave Washington Monday night by special train, boarding the USS Salt Lake City off Hampton Roads. The Salt Lake City, which just completed her final acceptance trial runs, will be waiting with engines running to bear the presidential party out to the ocean for the review, which will start as soon as the President arrives.

After the review, there will be held maneuvers consisting of the Battleship Divisions, air operations from the carriers, and an attack by the cruisers and destroyers against the dreadnaughts. As a feature of the day, an airplane will take off from the USS Saratoga and hook on the dirigible USS Los Angeles. It will then be launched from the Los Angeles and return to the Saratoga. This will be the first time that this operation is performed at sea. The plane will be piloted by Lt. Comdr. Charles A. Nicholson, CC, USN.

At the head of the fleet passing before the President will be the Submarine Divisions. When about a thousand yards from the reviewing ship, the Salt Lake City, they will submerge for about ten minutes and then surface.

Following the submarines will come the Cruiser Divisions. When 4,000 yards from the reviewing ship will increase their speed to 25 knots and will be in division columns. Five minutes after passing the Salt Lake City they will change course about 45 degrees to the left of the base course and proceed to a position about 10 miles on the starboard bow of the battleship divisions, preparatory to launching a simulation. War Strength Infantry Div. Provisionally Reorganized PROVISIONAL reorganization of the Infantry of the war strength Infantry division, with increased use of automatic and Infantry cannon, has been approved by the War Department, to be used in further testing reorganization of the Infantry division as a whole. Other arms included in the division will study this reorganization with a view to proposing conformable reorganizations of their own.

Study and test of this reorganization for increased fire power have been in progress at the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, since 1929. The following important changes are contemplated:

Increasing automatic rifles in the squad from one to two, with a corresponding reduction in magazine rifles; increasing the machine guns in the battalion from 12 to 16; adding a machine gun company of 16 guns to the Infantry regiment; increasing the 75-mm. mortars and 37-mm. guns in the Infantry regiment from three to eight each.

The Infantry of the division, under the new plan, will have one tank company of 24 tanks, a division headquarters company, a military police company, and two Infantry brigades composed of headquarters and headquarters company and two Infantry regiments each. The regiment comprises a headquarters and headquarters company, a service company, a cannon company of eight 37-mm. guns and eight 75-mm. mortars, a caliber .30 machine gun company of 16 guns, and three combat battalions. NG Bill Gets Hearing By House Committee

FIRST opposition in Congress to Mr. Speaks' "National Guard of the United States" bill—H. R. 10478—developed during a hearing on the legal aspects of the bill before the House Committee on Military Affairs on May 15. Representative Percy Quinn, of Mississippi, broke a silence during the involved and confused attempts to achieve a meeting of minds between members of the committee and the War Department representative, Maj. Lewis K. Underhill, JAGD, as to the language of the bill, to declare energetically that all understood the language well enough, but that he was utterly opposed to the bill as placing the National Guard of the United States in subjection to the President at all times, and thus nullifying States' rights over the National Guard.

Mr. Quinn's forceful, picturesque words, waving of arms and thumping of table, while affording some amusement to other committee members, gave compelling evidence of his sincerity in stating that he would vote against the bill.

Others Not Agitated

"I know what the language means," the Mississippi member stated. "You can't fool me about the language. If I tried to fool the people at home about it, I wouldn't come back to Congress."

None of the other members appeared to share Mr. Quinn's opposition. The episode relieved the slowness of a hearing plunged into misunderstanding by the inadvertent substitution, by Mr. Speaks, of the word "insertion" for "elimination." Reference was to the words "when in the service of the United States," eliminated in the bill after the words "National Guard of the United States," but contained in the National Defense Act after the words "National Guard" in the clause about the composition of the Army of the United States.

Upon reference to "insertion" of these words in the bill, Maj. Underhill, testifying as to the legal effect of the bill as viewed by the Judge Advocate General, proceeded to explain the situation in respect to "call" and "order" of the National Guard into the Federal service as contemplated in the National Defense Act at present, under the bill as written, and under the bill with the supposedly proposed reinsertion of "while in the service of the United States."

Acts Date Back to 1792

Under acts dating back to 1792, Maj. Underhill said, the National Guard could be "called" into service of the central government for any of the three constitutional purposes of enforcing law, suppressing insurrection and repelling invasion. Hitherto, when this occurred, the NG troops so "called" were State troops, serving the Federal government, under certain restrictions. Under the National Defense Act, they would be a component of the Army of United States "while in the service of the United States"—into which they may be "drafted" whenever Congress authorizes use of armed forces in excess of those of the Regular Army. Under the Speaks bill as originally written the President might "call" the National Guard of "the several States," etc., for the three constitutional purposes, and in the event of a declaration of war or "other national emergency" by Congress he might "order" the National Guard of the United States into service. Under the "call" the troops would function as State troops; under the "order" they suspend their State character and function as part of the Army of the United States for the period of the emergency. While only functioning as such under the specified conditions, they would be part of the Army of the United States at all times. Re-inserting "while in the service of the United States" in

Rep. Britten's Proposal Arouses Discussion of "Paper" vs. Actual Parity

THE Naval building program proposed by Representative Fred Britten, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, aimed to bring the United States Navy up to the strength authorized in the London Treaty has been the subject of editorial comment from Coast to Coast. While many of the large newspapers would be satisfied with a paper parity in Naval armament many more feel that failure to build up to the terms of the treaty would leave this nation in a deplorable state.

"SUCH A POLICY does not stand the test of experience," states the Philadelphia Public Ledger (Independent Republican) in speaking of Representative French's opposition to Britten's bill. "There is every reason for getting ahead as rapidly as possible with construction plans. * * * Plans may be made for year-by-year construction in the various categories of warcraft which will result in the attainment of Anglo-American parity as it was agreed upon at London. * * * But Congress, if it has a mind, can knock all plans and programs into a cocked hat. It may delay authorizations and appropriations and may make changes of any kind. * * * Public opinion must be exerted in support of this treaty with such force that Senators and Representatives will know that any attempt to evade their obligation will not be tolerated."

"WHATEVER new construction may be required to bring the United States Navy to parity with the British under terms of the Naval Treaty, it is obvious that such an ambitious program as is provided in the Britten bill would have a bad psychological effect at the present moment," comments the Philadelphia Inquirer (Republican). "The spending of such enormous funds off the bat, so to speak, would suggest to other Powers, however unjustly, an aggressive purpose. * * * Nor is the militant attitude of our big Navy men likely to make easier the ratification of the treaty by the Senate. * * * Representative French holds that the limit should not be regarded as a mandate, but as a figure above which no nation should build. This in the present circumstances is the more sensible view to take."

THE BROOKLYN Standard Union (Republican) says: "It is not fully realized by the public how far short our navy now is. * * * we can have ships enough under the treaty and it is for Congress and the executive officials to provide the money and allot the work."

THE LONDON TREATY provides for parity with Great Britain," comments the Washington Star (Independent). "That is as it should be. But it is folly for Mr. Britten to urge that this country should undertake to bring about such parity within a brief period when the necessary expenditures would cause a deficit. * * * the more conservative plans for naval construction advanced by Mr. French are likely to find favor with millions of Americans."

BY ALL MEANS the United States must keep to the letter of its agreement reached in London," is the opinion of the Sioux City, Iowa, Journal (Independent). "It must not let parity with Great Britain go by default."

THERE IS NO EXCUSE for a nation to build beyond its needs for security," declares the Louisville Courier-Journal (Democratic). "There is no mandate in the treaty that every signatory shall utilize the utmost of its tonnage allotment. If there is anything in the three-power pact it is a spirit of give and take, and this spirit can be furthered by a conservative rather than an extreme interpretation of its provisions."

Representative French has fired the first gun in the controversy over a war-time building programme and scored a perfect hit. The jingoes will have difficulty in refuting his argument or in convincing the public that Anglo-American parity in a period of the utmost amity is an all important essential."

"WHAT DOES MR. BRITTEN WANT with these ships?" asks the Rochester Times-Union (Independent). "Such a bill in this day and time is but a hangover. He does not understand that the world wants peace. * * * He forgets that the London treaty provides for arms limitations, that the treaty is the way to peace, that its adoption will open the way to curtail spending taxpayers' money on war-provoking armaments."

SPEAKING OF THE DESIRE of Representative French and others that we keep our building program far below treaty limits, the New York Herald-Tribune (Independent Republican) says, "This backtracking would have effect of prolonging the American inferiority of status which has plagued us ever since the Washington conference. * * * In consequence of our disastrous frugality, we had to go to Geneva with a request to the two powers to grant us parity in auxiliaries by cutting their new construction down toward our level. * * * We were laughed at for our pains. It was only when we authorized in 1929 the construction of fifteen 10,000 ton 8-inch-gun cruisers that our suggestion of an extension of parity to auxiliaries was taken seriously. * * * Economy with our naval program did not pay between 1922 and 1930. It will not pay between 1930 and 1936."

AN ANNOUNCEMENT of a billion dollar Navy construction program on the heels of the naval limitation treaty will astonish some Americans who recall President Hoover's estimate of a billion dollar saving to be effected under the London pact," states the New Orleans Times-Picayune (Independent Democratic). "The American people may as well recognize the fact that London pact does not usher in millennium and this country must continue to maintain a strong and efficient fleet for its own defense. * * * for the time being we cannot neglect our sea defenses; whatever outlay is required to maintain our fleet at 'treaty strength' will constitute a wise and necessary investment."

"WE SHOULD DO THIS in order to achieve 'parity' with Great Britain," declares the Wilmington News (Republican). "Was it not admitted that we should have 'parity' with England? If then we have 'parity' admitted we should proceed to enjoy the fruits of our fine work at London and spend one hundred million a year to do so."

"IT IS WORTH THE MONEY," the New York News (Independent) says. "Actual parity was what our delegates went to London to get. Britten's bill should be passed, and the money appropriated as needed to put the ships on the seas."

UNCLE SAM WOULD HAVE TO PAY out a large sum for replacements under any conditions if he is not to reduce the navy very materially," points out the Indianapolis Star (Independent). "It is not intended as a first step in any contest with Great Britain or any other sea power, although the sum involved is very large."

EVEN AT THAT, if an expenditure of a billion dollars in ten years will assure the United States a navy equal to that of any other nation, then the conference will have been worth while," comments the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch (Independent Democratic). "But if the American government is to attain parity only in blueprints, the London Conference in the final analysis will have been a failure."

Public Opinion On Pay

(With all classes of citizenry already backing the move to revise upward the service pay schedules expressions of public opinion still continue to be made. In spite of the blanket admonitions of the administration against any measures the effect of which would be to increase expenditures, the taxpayers of the nation, fully realizing the needs and cost, continue to call for action.)

The following resolution, regarding service pay, has been adopted by the West Palm Beach Chamber of Commerce:

"BE IT RESOLVED, That the West Palm Beach Chamber of Commerce, has here gone on record as favoring a substantial increase in pay, for the officers and enlisted men, both active and retired, of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health and Geodetic Survey, recommended by the Interdepartmental Board, as an act of fairness and justice for the long record of loyal, faithful, efficient and honorable public service in all of their activities in the interest of the American people, and that it urges its representatives in both branches of the Congress of the United States to do all within their power to have legislation enacted during the Seventy-first Congress to bring about increased compensation for the officers and enlisted men of the above named services."

THE following resolution has been adopted by Bush Terminal Merchants and Manufacturers Association:

"Whereas the pay of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health and Coast and Geodetic Survey, which has received practically no increase in 22 years, is inadequate to the present standards of living, and is far below the compensation paid for equal responsibilities in civilian life, and

61st CA on Record March

ON MAY 14, the 61st Coast Artillery (Antiaircraft) began one of the longest marches ever undertaken by any unit in the military service, from Ft. Monroe, Va., to Ft. Sheridan, Ill., more than 1,000 miles.

This movement is in accordance with the recent plan of the War Department for the reorganization of the Coast Artillery Corps. Hereafter the 61st Coast Artillery will be stationed at Ft. Sheridan, the first Coast Artillery regiment to be stationed in the interior of the country. Ft. Sheridan was selected as a desirable center from which to conduct antiaircraft training of a great number of National Guard and Reserve antiaircraft regiments located in the interior of the country. Camp Knox, a war-time cantonment, will be utilized for antiaircraft target practices and training during the summer training seasons.

The regiment on the march consists of a column of over a mile in length made up of over 100 motor vehicles of all kinds. The greater number of these will be FWD trucks.

At Huntington, W. Va., a detachment of four officers, eighty-five enlisted men and twenty-six motor vehicles, under the command of Maj. D. D. Hinman, will split off from the main column and will proceed to Camp Knox, and with regard to the present purchasing power of the dollar; Therefore Be It

"Resolved, That the Board of Directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Bush Terminal, Inc., of Brooklyn, New York, does hereby go on record as favoring an increase in compensation paid to officers and enlisted men, both active and retired, of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health and Coast and Geodetic Survey as recommended by the Interdepartmental Board as an act of fairness and justice for their long record of loyal and efficient public service in all of their activities in the interests of their country, and it does urge its representatives in both branches of the Congress of the United States to do all within their power to have legislation enacted during this session of Congress to bring about this increased compensation for the officers and enlisted men of the above-named services."

At some points 24-hour stops have been scheduled not only to permit the soldiers to see the country but to enable the local residents to visit and get acquainted with its Army and Antiaircraft Artillery.

In a change of station involving a hundred vehicles and tons of baggage and equipment a motor movement makes it possible to effect an immense saving in transportation charges. Over 300 men will accompany the column. The cost of rail transportation for all this would be considerable. The Government has saved money by directing the movement be made by means of the motor transportation with which the regiment is provided.

The tactical training in the movement of a column of this size over such a long distance will be of the greatest value to the regiment. In peace times traffic conditions are very different from those existing in time of war. Much care will be taken in passing through cities and congested sections. Police escorts will be furnished not only to assist the regiment in passing through but also to the advantage of commercial traffic which might become jammed through the passage of such a large number of vehicles in one column.

The officers accompanying the regiment are:

Maj. James H. Cunningham, commanding.
Maj. D. D. Hinman.
Capt. R. B. Bottom.
Capt. R. T. Chaplin.
Capt. W. F. Marquat.
1st Lt. P. C. Howe.
1st Lt. Donald McLean.
1st Lt. W. M. Merritt.
1st Lt. I. H. Ritchie.
1st Lt. G. W. Trichel.
1st Lt. F. J. Woods.

Treaty Hearings

tance can be attached to this "hollow victory" over the British.

In the appearance of Adm. Pratt and Rear Adm. Jones, the divergent views in the Navy on the relative merits of the 8-inch vs. the 6-inch gun cruiser were brought out.

Adm. Pratt, frankly admitting that he had, in a measure, changed his views on this point, defended the course taken by the American delegation and explained his course at London as follows:

"Regardless of the superior merits of the 8-inch-type cruiser claimed by some for individual ship action and long distance raiding on enemy trade routes, I prefer, for fleet work, a more even distribution of the two types of cruisers, the 8-inch and 6-inch, and the present arrangement of 18 8-inch and 18 6-inch units, as allowed under the treaty, is better for our fleet needs than all 8-inch cruiser tonnage.

"From the viewpoint of fleet combat strength I feel that the treaty is most satisfactory."

Replies To Robinson

Replying to a suggestion from Senator Robinson, of Indiana, that his policy represented a "radical change," Adm. Pratt said:

"Well, who knows anything about the 8-inch and 6-inch cruisers? We have never fought with either. The 8-inch only fire three a minute. They won't do at night. The 6-inch can fire ten or twelve a minute. Give me some of these faster firing guns. We need them in night action. Let the 6-inch get in about nightfall or in a fog and she will eat up the 8-inch. And you don't have good visibility on the Pacific."

Adm. Jones sounded the first real note of protest against certain provisions of the treaty and reiterated his unwavering attitude on the necessity of more 8-inch gun cruisers. Asserting that he believed a different settlement and one fairer to the United States could have been evolved, the admiral stated that he "disagreed fundamentally with Adm. Pratt" and added "I cannot understand his position."

Asserting that Great Britain had always tried to beat down the American strength in the 8-inch gun cruisers and had achieved this result in London, he classified the Japanese strength as "5-5 plus."

Some significance was attached to a statement by Chairman Borah that he agreed with the statement of our Navy's need for more of the big gun ships though he was not prepared to state his attitude on ratification.

Adm. Jones also criticized the battleship clause in that it did not affect Italy and France, who were in the Washington agreement, on the ground that any building by them may affect Great Britain's building plans. He also expressed disapproval of the provision permitting a speed of 20 knots in the unlimited building of small ships, declaring that such ships would prove valuable against commerce or against submarines.

In his testimony Secretary Adams stated that a ten-year, billion dollar program would be necessary but voiced the opinion that it might be wise to spread it out over a longer period; that a more deliberate program might prove less expensive and more advantageous. This was not interpreted in naval circles as any indorsement of the French proposal but a sane program of longer duration than the $100,000,000 a year now proposed. There is a strong sentiment against a too hurried embarkation on a huge program but a unanimity of opinion that only on condition that the needed ships will be provided, can the treaty be accepted as providing adequate national protection.

Back from Inspection

MAJ. SANDERFORD JARMAN, in charge of the training section in the office of the Chief of Coast Artillery, has just returned from a trip on which he inspected Organized Reserve and ROTC activities in the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th Corps Areas.

NG Bill Considered

the Speaks bill, the troops would, only when serving under "order," be part of the Army of the United States.

Upon this explanation it was discovered that re-insertion of the "while" clause was not contemplated.

Mr. Quin Objects

Mr. McSwain, of South Carolina, thereupon asked where the legal conflict, as seen by the Judge Advocate General's Department, lay. He said it was the evident object of the bill to "make the words 'National Guard' effective."

Mr. Wainwright, of New York, asked if the main effect of the bill was not to do away with the necessity of a dual status for the embodiment of the National Guard in the Federal Service.

At this point Mr. Quin interposed with the statement that the National Guard was being made exactly the same as the Regular Army—under the President at all times.

Mr. Speaks pointed out that the National Guard was at all times under the service of the governor, and that its members, if the bill did not pass, would nevertheless be subject to Federal service in the same circumstances. Mr. Quin then made it plain that he understood the language, as did his constituents.

Maj. Underhill pointed out that if, as provided in the bill, five additional members should be appointed to the General Staff from each of the second and third components when questions concerning them arose, the Regular Army would be outnumbered two to one.

It was decided to incorporate the Judge Advocate General's opinions in a brief, to be presented before the committee on May 19.

Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, Deputy Chief of Staff, and Maj. Allen Gullion, JAGD, also attended the hearing.

Gen. Summerall, at the hearing on Friday, May 16, gave general approval of the bill. He said it tends to affect the unity of command but that this is offset by the provision that the Chief of the National Guard Bureau should be directly responsible to the Secretary of War.

The War Department, he said, does not think it advisable to have reference in the bill to the other components of the Army of the United States because, under the wording of the measure, officers of the National Guard would outrank officers of the Regular Army, because they could be transferred in the event of emergency from the National Guard into the Organized Reserves and their service counted as continuous.

Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, NG, chairman of the legislative committee of the National Guard Association, however, explained that active federal service as well as date of commission were to be counted in determining the longevity of such officers for promotion.

Gen. Summerall submitted the draft of a bill that would secure the incorporation of the National Guard into the Army of the United States as contemplated in the Speaks bill but eliminating the features to which he had objected.

Inf. Div. Reorganization

talion includes headquarters and headquarters company, three rifle companies, each armed with 144 rifles and 37 automatic rifles, and one machine gun company of 16 guns.

Machine guns for war strength brigade will be 128, compared with 96 in the World War and 75 at present. There will be 648 automatic rifles to the brigade, compared with 384 in the war and 325 now.

All field trains of the Infantry regiment are to be motorized, combat trains remaining animal-drawn.

The 29th Infantry, Ft. Benning, will, within the limits of its present personnel, be reorganized in accordance with the new scheme.

Report Construction Bill

THE bill to authorize construction at the Military Academy and Fts. Lewis and Benning—H. R. 8159—was reported out by the House Military Committee this week.

Construction of the new officers' apartment building at the Military Academy, at not to exceed $45,000, is to be completed, by terms of the bill. Authorization is given for $119,000 appropriation for noncommissioned officers' quarters at Ft. Lewis, and $75,000 for a barracks at Ft. Benning, to house the Medical Detachment.

Kearney Air Base Urged Before Naval Committee

CONSIDERATION of the general air defense of San Diego and San Francisco was the high point of the hearing, May 16, before the House Naval Affairs Committee on the establishment of a naval lighter-than-air base on the Pacific Coast.

Chairman Britten appeared to favor location of the base at Sunnyvale, in questioning Adm. Jehu V. Chase, who has been in the witness chair for the best part of the hearing. Mr. Britten said, however, that he intended to cross-examine witnesses who favored Sunnyvale to the same extent that he has questioned Adm. Chase, who represents the Navy General Board which has recommended establishment of the base at Camp Kearney.

In endeavoring to break down one reason given by the Navy Board in favor of Camp Kearney—that it had adequate defense from attack by air because of its proximity to the Naval air base at North Island—Chairman Britten said that while the Navy has no air facilities at San Francisco, the Army does have them. Adm. Chase replied that the San Diego section offers the best protection.

More Planes Required

Rep. Vinson of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the committee, pointed out that if Congress should decide to locate the base at San Francisco, naval aviation facilities would have to be located here and that this would mean either an increased number of planes for the Navy or a reduction in air activities at other points.

The three days of testimony on the location of the airship base still leaves much to be said on the matter, and hearings will continue for some time. Secretary Adams will testify, as will members of the Navy General Board, and of the special air base board. Several members of Congress from California will probably ask to be heard. Nothing will be done until Fall, at any rate, as the naval committee plans a trip to west coast to look over not only the Camp Kearney and Sunnyvale sites, but a number of others as well.

The committee voted to ask the Secretary of the Navy to send them the record of proceedings of the General Board, when considering the question of locating the base. In this way, it was felt the committee could best understand the board's reasons for making its decision favoring Camp Kearney.

Woodruff For It

Representative Woodruff, of Michigan, one of the ranking Republicans on the committee, declared himself as favoring Camp Kearney and argued at some length as to its advantages. Adm. Chase testified as to the board's recommendation favoring location of the base in the San Diego area. He was in the witness chair on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The committee had before it two bills, one for the establishment of a base at Camp Kearney, which is near San Diego, and another for Sunnyvale, close to San Francisco. Argument was not narrowed to the relative merits of these two sites, however, the prospects of using the Lakehurst field, the old Roma hangar, and the Cape May field being advanced by members of the committee. It being pointed out that the facilities at these fields were inadequate, the location of the new base in other sections of the United States was considered.

Representative McClintic, Democrat, of Oklahoma, argued for placing the base in Oklahoma City. The fact that his home city was nearly equidistant from the East and West coasts, Guantanamo Bay, and was nearer to the Canal Zone than San Diego, and the comparative safety from attack were arguments advanced by Mr. McClintic. Answering his contentions, Adm. Chase declared that the function of the airship was offensive, not defensive, and should be based on the seacoast to get the full advantage of the great cruising radius of the ship in scouting. The danger from attack on a lighter-than-air base would be from enemy air-planes, he stated, not enemy vessels. Therefore the base should be located close by to a heavier-than-air field for protection.

This was a determining factor in the General Board's decision, he said, the proximity of Camp Kearney to North Island.

Fleet Basing Talked

Considerable discussion centered around the question of future basing of the fleet. Adm. Chase, in telling of the reasons of the General Board for lated light force attack against the battleships when ordered by the Commander in Chief, United States Fleet. They will support the destroyer attack when made. This attack will be made after the battleships deploy.

The Destroyer Squadrons will increase their speed to 25 knots at the same time as the Cruiser Divisions. They will pass the reviewing ship in a compact formation, following in the wake of the Light Cruiser Divisions. The destroyers will make a torpedo attack on the battleships as directed by the Commander of the Light Cruiser Divisions. Upon the completion of the attack, the Special Destroyer Squadron of the Battle Fleet will form an escort for the Salt Lake City remaining with her until sunset.

The Fleet Flagship, USS Texas, will pass the reviewing ship and then take station about two miles on the van flank of the battle line when deployed.

Battleship Divisions will be in cruising formation, speed about 15 knots, while passing the reviewing ship. About ten minutes after passing the reviewing ship, they will deploy on the left flank and conduct simulated normal action against an assumed opposing main body. They will be prepared to catapult planes if ordered.

Aircraft Squadrons will be in column during the review. Immediately upon passing the reviewing ship they will proceed to launch planes. They will simulate air operations of a major engagement, light bombing planes attacking battleships and reviewing ship. Torpedo plane squadron will make an attack through smoke curtain on port quarter of battle line, simulating a spread of torpedoes to prevent reversal course of battle line. Upon the completion of these air operations, they will recover planes.

All saluting ships will fire a presidential salute of 21 guns on passing the Salt Lake City, on which President Hoover will review the fleet.

Upon the conclusion of the review, the ships of the Scouting Fleet will carry out the approved schedules as directed by the Commander of the Scouting Fleet. The units of the Battle Fleet, except for the escort for the reviewing ship, will proceed to Hampton Roads as directed by the Commander in Chief, Battle Fleet.

Signal School Exercises

THE annual field exercises of the Signal School will be held at Camp Dix, N. J., from May 23 to May 28, inclusive.

These exercises are participated in by both commissioned and enlisted students. The student personnel are organized into provisional signal communication units for certain designated units of an Infantry Division. The instructor personnel act as umpires for the different units.

The students are given an opportunity to apply practically the theoretical instruction which they have received during the winter months.

To Count Naval Service

THE War Department has initiated legislation to permit the Naval and Marine Corps service of Army officers to be included in computing dates of retirement. In a letter sent to Congress recently, Acting Secretary of War Davison submitted the draft of a bill to this effect.

Secretary Davison points out that in all fairness this legislation should be enacted, as not only are naval officers allowed to count service in the Regular or Volunteer Army toward retirement but also enlisted men of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps may credit service in another branch for 30-year retirements. In computing longevity pay, Army officers may credit Navy and Marine Corps service, he states.

There are 101 officers of the Army who would be affected by this action, the Secretary says, their service in the Navy ranging from a few months to 8 or 9 years. Due to present construction of the promotion list, it is believed that there will be no immediate expense incurred by the retirement of any officer upon the passage of a bill to this effect.

Nicaragua Malaria Tests

WHILE Army engineers map the jungles of Nicaragua to locate a route for the proposed canal, Army medical troops are conducting a sanitary survey that promises enormous benefits to the residents of that country, according to a War Department announcement this week.

Nearly 800 persons have been examined in the San Carlos area and specimens studied to determine the sources of hook worm, dysentery, and malaria prevalent in Nicaragua.

Dr. Jacinto Perez, Director General de Sanidad of Nicaragua, is cooperating with Capt. Jaime J. Figueras, of the U. S. Army Medical Corps, in the survey.

Pass War-Time Rank Bill

THE Senate on May 12 passed the measure giving to commissioned officers who served in the Army during the World War the highest rank held by them during the war, when they are retired from active service.

By the terms of the bill, officers who have died, whether on the active or retired list, are considered to have been advanced in rank at the date of death. Officers now on the active list who in the future may die before retirement will also be given the higher rank at death.

Retired officers take the higher rank from the date of retirement while active officers will assume it when they go on the inactive list. The rank is purely honorary, as it is provided that no increase of pay or allowances shall result from the measure.

The privilege of bearing the official title and of wearing upon occasions of ceremony the uniform of the highest grade held during the war, is also given to all those who served honorably during the war.

Install Remote Reception

BEGINNING May 9, all the War Department Message Center's radio signals were being received by remote control from Washington Barracks, and transferred to the Munitions Building on tone channels. Interference caused by many electric fans, blue-print machines, violet ray machines, etc., in the Munitions Building necessitated this step.

After 4:30 p. m. each day service from the remote center is cancelled and signals come in direct to the Munitions Building.

The innovation gives the War Department a unique system in that both transmitted and received signals are remotely controlled.

Sound Films for 35 Posts

EQUIPMENT manufactured by RCA Photophone, Inc., for the showing of sound pictures will be installed in 35 Army posts in addition to the 25 posts already having this apparatus, it has been learned.

At the rate of three or four installations per week, this equipment will shortly be set up in the post theaters at Carlisle Barracks, Ft. Des Moines, DuPont, Eustis, and Howard, Camp Knox, March Field, Fts. McClellan, Oglethorpe, Robinson and Screven, Selfridge Field, Ft. Washington and the Military Academy.

To Bar Army Bus Letting

MR. JOHNSON, of Washington, has introduced H. R. 12203, to prohibit the operation of motor-propelled vehicles by Army post exchanges for hire for private gain without a certificate of convenience and necessity in States requiring such certificates.

225,933 For Training

FIGURES compiled by the War Department indicate that a total of 225,923 trainees of the civilian components of the Army will be trained in the nine Corps Area and the Hawaiian Department during the summer of 1930. To accomplish this training will require the services of 3,909 officers, 12 warrant officers and 43,871 enlisted men of the Regular Army.

The number of trainees by Corps officers and 43,871 enlisted men of the Areas is as follows:

First Corps Area, 23,934; Second, 31,886; Third, 27,570; Fourth, 26,706; Fifth, 21,592; Sixth, 24,392; Seventh, 25,410; Eighth, 23,415; Ninth, 19,396; Hawaiian Department 1,632. Total, 225,933.

First Class to A. P. G.

Aberdeen Proving Grounds (Special).—The first class of the United States Military Academy visited here May 4 to 6. On the evening of the 4th they were guests at a concert by the 69th CA band. The following morning, after an address by the commandant, Lt. Col. E. M. Shinkle, OD, the class was divided into ten sections for instructions regarding different proving ground features and projects, and on the afternoon of the 5th they assembled for demonstrations.

Retirement Pay Attacked

PROTEST against the retirement privileges of Army and Navy officers was made upon the floor of the Senate May 12 by Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts. Particular reference was directed to cases in which retired officers accept outside positions and receive both a salary and their retirement pay.

The matter was brought up during debate on a bill to raise the salaries of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, Mr. Walsh directing attention to the fact that Maj. Gen. Herbert Crosby, USA, ret., was receiving pay both from the government and the District of Columbia.

"I am disturbed about retired Army and Navy officers filling civilian positions," he declared. "Such officers are candidates for many positions which are becoming vacant, and a good deal of activity is being displayed in their behalf."

Later during his remarks, the Senator said: "I look for a revolt among the people against increasing the retired list of the Army and Navy and giving civilian positions to officers thus retired. I see evidence of this on many sides."

Tighten Tank Marksmanship

PROFICIENCY in tank marksmanship has become so wide-spread that higher standards of excellence must be set up, and accordingly TR 420-270 (Infantry—Tank Marksmanship) has been changed to increase the minimum aggregate scores required for qualification.

Expert gunners must make 330 points instead of 306 on the A course, 204 instead of 191 on B course, 290 instead of 276 on C, and 209 instead of 196 on D. First class gunners are required to make 260, 190, 270 and 195 on courses A to D, instead of 247, 179, 252, and 184. The lowest classification, that of second class gunner, can be attained only with 220, 160, 230, and 165 on the four courses, instead of 204, 149, 218, and 163.

Instead of a total combined score of 75 per cent of the total combined possible score in machine-gun target practice and 37 mm. subcalibre practice, as formerly, a total combined score of 280 points will now be required.

Submits Bill

ACTING SECRETARY DAVISON has submitted a draft of a bill to Congress to authorize the subsistence of personnel of the Army in private hospitals.

Civilian medical service for Army personnel, when treatment by medical officers is unavailable, has been provided for some time in the annual appropriation acts. It is to give permanent basis to this practice that the legislation is sought. The bill would affect not only regular personnel, but contract surgeons, applicants for enlistment, civilian employees under contract, persons interned, military prisoners, public animals, and official mounts.

21st Winner in Test

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, T. H. (Special).—Of the two Infantry Brigades stationed at Schofield Barracks, T. H., the Twenty-First Brigade has taken major honors incident to the Supply Efficiency Test conducted by the Hawaiian Department during the period July 1, 1929, to December 31, 1929, of which the experimental and final phases have ended.

The Supply Efficiency Test is an experiment to determine the manner in which and with what results, material savings in supplies and non-expendable property can be effected; to provide a system of credits through which administrative efficiency may be suitably rewarded; to enable commanding officers to compare the administrative and supply efficiency of their various units, on a relative cost basis, thus releasing funds to the War Department Budget for essential purposes and to enable that agency to make the maximum use of every dollar appropriated.

This competition was conducted by groups of which Group III comprised the Infantry stationed in the Hawaiian Department, and to stimulate interest, pennants were authorized by Department Headquarters. Of the seven classes, in six of which pennants were authorized, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, this Brigade were awarded the pennants for organizations of their classes, while the 19th Infantry was awarded three of the remaining five pennants as follows:

Regimental Headquarters Companies, 1st Hqrs. Co., 19th Infantry. Machine Gun Companies, 1st Co. "M," 19th Infantry. Rifle Companies, 1st Co. "E," 19th Infantry.

The 19th Infantry also led the four regiments in Regimental Overhead, for which class, however, no pennant was authorized.

The 19th Infantry is commanded by Col. Frederick R. de Funiak, jr.

NICARAGUAN CAMPAIGN CLOSING DATE SET

"ALL'S quiet along the Nicaraguan front!" So says the Navy Department in an order approved May 6, setting the closing date for the award of the Nicaraguan campaign medal. Service on shore in Nicaragua between the dates of August 27, 1926, the official opening of the campaign, and March 31, 1930, approval of which has just been made, will entitle officers and men of the Navy and Marine Corps to receive the medal, the design of which has just been accepted by the Department. Officers and men serving on a number of designated ships operating in Nicaraguan waters during this time will also receive the campaign medal.

MECHANICAL BAND TEST IS AUTHORIZED

THE Acting Secretary of War, F. Trubee Davison, has authorized a service test of a mechanical substitute for an Army band, manufactured by the Radio Corporation of America. The device will be issued to Fort Washington, Md., for test by the 3rd Battalion of the 12th Infantry.

It is contemplated, if the apparatus is finally adopted for use by the Army, to utilize it at stations which have no bands. There are at the present time 16 such stations garrisoned by line troops. In addition to these there are no bands at some service schools, some flying fields and recruit depots.

The apparatus is a well appearing and neat unit, built into a three-fourths ton truck. The volume of music developed is equivalent to two large bands and may be diminished or increased as desired. The apparatus can be used as a complete substitute for the instrumental music of the band and to a limited degree for field music. It is impossible to utilize it in conjunction with a band, therefore there will be no reduction in the strength of bands, according to a War Department statement.

"AL" WILLIAMS' SWAN SONG IS NEW AERIAL STUNT

THE RESIGNATION of Lt. Alford J. Williams, jr., noted Navy speed and acrobatic pilot, became effective May 16 and two days before that the flier sang his swan song in the form of a new stunt—an "inverted falling leaf." Lt. Williams performed the feat flying from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, D. C., over the city of Washington, and received much approbation from the daily press.

Lt. Williams told newspaper men that there still remain two maneuvers which never have been performed but that these are impossible until much more powerful motors are available than are found in the Airplane of today. Lt. Williams resigned when he was ordered to sea duty because, he said, he wished to complete his work on high speed flight.

CONVICT STREAM FLOWS INTO ARMY POSTS

WITH THE FIRST GROUPS of federal prisoners already quartered at three Army posts, "reinforcements" are on their way and when the convict-housing program of the Department of Justice is concluded, 1,700 violators of United States laws will be swinging the shovel and the pick in behalf of good roads and sanitation for the Army.

There are 200 convicts at Ft. Bragg, N. C., with 200 more scheduled to go there within the next few days, according to Sanford Bates, Superintendent of Prisons. The commanding officer of the post wants still another 200, Mr. Bates added, but the government won't give them to him.

At Ft. George G. Meade, Md., 48 prisoners are quartered in barracks alongside those that house the soldiers, the difference being that the convict barracks has a barbed wire fence around it. At Ft. Riley, Kans., according to Mr. Bates, there are another 48, with 51 more asked by the post, according to Department of Justice officials. Final plans call for a total of 200 at Ft. George G. Meade and 200 at Ft. Riley, with 600 at the deserted Camp Lee, Va. These, with the 400 at Ft. Bragg, leave 300 of the 1700 to be disposed of in certain forestry camps and possibly at Ft. Lewis, Wash., whence a request for their labor has come recently to the prison superintendent.

"RED" CAGLE IS THROWN FOR LOSS BY ARMY

THE CASE of "a cadet named Cagle," as he was referred to by the Acting Secretary of War, moved to a sensational and gossipy denouement during the past week and when it was all over, the War Department had requested the immediate resignation of the Army's star back, Christian Keener Cagle, after having a few days previously indicated that Cagle might find it difficult to quit the Army upon graduation from West Point this June, as he wished to do. His marriage in Texas two years ago, just now revealed, was the cause of the War Department action.

The first development came last week when Cagle was quoted as saying he wished to resign from the Army and accept a position as coach at Mississippi A. & M. College. At this time Cagle said he would join the National Guard or Organized Reserves if permitted to resign from the Army.

As the sports writers of the daily papers got busy with this bit of gossip, Acting Secretary Davison issued a statement to the effect that the Department had not received any application from Cagle to resign and that until such an application had been received and acted on there was no foundation for the presumption that Cagle would be allowed to leave the Army without serving the required eight years.

Then came the revelation that the gridiron star had been married and the War Department summarily requested his resignation from the Military Academy.

ADM. JONES' TESTIMONY REVEALS REASONS FOR WITHDRAWAL

REAR ADM. HILARY P. JONES may be on the retired list, but he is demonstrating that he regards himself as still actively in the service of the Nation and the Navy. His testimony before the Senate Naval Committee relative to the disarmament treaty explains the reasons for his voluntary withdrawal from London while the negotiations were in progress. Adm. Jones did not propose to remain in a false position, to be even tacitly an adherent to the instrument which injured the effectiveness of the Fleet of the present and future.

Knowing the regard of the Nation for this distinguished officer, we are certain that his views will make a deep impression, and we may anticipate that a considerable body of Senators will decline to consent to ratification unless the defects which the Admiral has pointed out to them are remedied.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., CALLS MAJ. H. C. BROWN

ONCE again, municipalities have turned to the Army for brains to run their affairs. Maj. Herbert Carey Brown, Corps of Engineers, has resigned his commission to accept an appointment as director of improvements in the city of Rochester, N. Y. That he will provide a first-class administration in his civilian office may be expected from an officer of his attainments and experience. The case of Maj. Brown furnishes another illustration not only of the worth of officers of the Services, but of the necessity which drives them to abandon their Army careers because of the paucity of pay they receive from the Government. The Congressional Pay Commission should take notice.

MR. KELLOGG HONORED BY THIRD INFANTRY

FRANK B. KELLOGG, former Secretary of State, headed nearly 30 prominent St. Paul and Minneapolis citizens who became honorary members of the Third Infantry, oldest regiment of the Army, in a review of the "Old Guard," held at Ft. Snelling, Friday, May 9.

Col. W. C. Sweeney, commanding officer, stating that the citizens were under no military obligation thereby, presented each new member of the regiment with a certificate of membership during the ceremony.

Escorted by officers of the fort staff, each honorary member was conducted on an inspection of the troops. The review was followed by a reception at the Officers' Club of Ft. Snelling.

NEW RIGID AIRSHIP NAMED "AKRON"

SECRETARY OF NAVY ADAMS has assigned the name "Akron" to the rigid airship ZRS-4 now under construction at the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation, Akron, Ohio. This is the first of the two rigid airships authorized to be constructed by the act approved June 24, 1926, upon which work has actually been started. The two are intended for operation with the fleet, one to be based on the East coast and one on the West coast.

The "Laying of the Ring" of the new ship was done last October by Rear Adm. Wm. A. Moffett.

TWELVE SUBMARINES STRICKEN FROM NAVY REGISTER

ADM. LEIGH AND COMDR. WILKINSON THANKED BY COMMITTEE

REAR ADM. RICHARD H. LEIGH, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and Comdr. T. S. Wilkinson, of his office, were the recipients of praise and appreciation from members of the House Committee on Naval Affairs yesterday when Adm. Leigh, who becomes vice admiral and commander of the battleship division of the Battle Fleet, presented Rear Adm. F. B. Upham, his successor, to the committee.

Chairman Britten recalled with amusement that when he first met Adm. Leigh he was known as "Red" Leigh because of his hair. He gave high praise to the splendid manner in which Adm. Leigh had assisted the committee in its work. Representative Hale of New Hampshire, and Representative Vinson of Georgia, also praised Adm. Leigh and Comdr. Wilkinson, who becomes fleet gunnery officer on the staff of the commander of the Scouting Fleet. Their work, Mr. Vinson said, has set a standard which may well be emulated by their successors.

HOUSTON SPEAKS UP FOR NAVY

VICTOR K. HOUSTON, delegate to Congress from Hawaii, speaking before the House, May 12, expressed his supreme confidence that the United States Navy would prove equal to any emergency which it was called upon to face. His statement was invoked by the prediction of Representative Cross of Texas, who was advocating independence for the Philippines, that the islands would bring about a war between Japan and the United States in which Japanese submarines would send all of our ships to the bottom of the sea.

Discuss Carrier Cost

THE cost of operation and maintenance of the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga for the fiscal year 1929, a subject that has disturbed several members of Congress, was respectively $2,360,680.15 and $2,424,127.19, according to figures furnished the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee by Adm. Hughes during hearings on the Navy Department appropriation bill.

The admiral furnished the figures at the request of Representative Burton L. French, of Idaho, who feared that the cost would run, in the case of each, to $3,000,000.

Adm. Hughes also discussed the cost of operating the dirigible Los Angeles for the fiscal year of 1929 which showed a grand total for operation and maintenance of the station as well as the airship, of $354,547.02.

Sojourners Hear Admiral

Great Lakes, Ill. (Special)—Great Lakes Chapter No. 30, National Sojourners, held its monthly meeting at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., May 7. Following a custom of several years' standing this was a joint meeting of the Chicago, Milwaukee, Rockford and Great Lakes Chapters.

Dinner was served to the members and guests in the Cooks' and Bakers' school at 6:30 p. m., after which the session assembled in the auditorium of the Officers' Club, with Comdr. E. W. Lacy, DC, USN, head of Great Lakes Chapter No. 30, presiding.

Rear Adm. Walter S. Crosley, USN, Commandant of the Ninth Naval District and the Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, was present as a guest and was the speaker of the evening. Brig. Gen. Casper H. Conrad, USA, commanding general at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., a member of Great Lakes Chapter, was also present. Adm. Crosley gave a detailed narrative of his experience while serving as Naval attaché at Petrograd, Russia, in 1917, and his escape from that country with Mrs. Crosley and a party of American refugees through northern Russia and Finland into Sweden, during the early stages of the Bolshevik revolution.

June Week Exercises

GRADUATING exercises for the 400-odd members of the first class at the Naval Academy have been scheduled for Thursday, June 4, at 10.30 a. m., and a series of parades, dances, and athletic events has been arranged to make 1930 June week a memorable one.

High lights of the program will be: the unveiling of the bronze statue of Tecumseh Saturday morning, May 31; annual meeting of the USNA Graduates' Association that afternoon with the Graduates' dinner in the evening, hops for the three upper classes later; on Tuesday, the Superintendent's garden party for the graduating class with a hop for the third class and the Ring Dance for the second class also scheduled; presentation of prizes and awards at dress parade Wednesday, followed by the farewell ball that evening.

June week officially begins Thursday afternoon, May 29, and is concluded the following Thursday. Full dress uniform will be worn by officers at the graduating exercises, with evening dress, blue B, prescribed for evening functions. For Sunday church services the uniform will be undress, blue B without side arms or sword belts. If the weather makes it advisable, white uniforms may be prescribed.

Over twenty awards will be made to members of the graduating class at Dress Parade, June 4. For the first time this year, the Navy Department will award trophies for excellence in small arms firing. They will be known as the "Secretary of the Navy's Rifle Trophy" and the "Secretary of the Navy's Pistol Trophy." Gold, silver and bronze medals will also be presented for excellence in small arms target practice.

The sword awarded by the class of 1897 to the midshipman who has contributed most by his officerlike qualities and positive character to the development of naval spirit and loyalty within the regiment will be presented at that time, and the midshipman's name inscribed on the 1897 cup. At the same time the Navy Athletic Association will present a sword emblematic of excellence in athletics, and the name of the midshipman who has done the most for the promotion of athletics will have his name inscribed on the Thompson Cup.

A cup presented by the Sons of the Revolution will be inscribed with the name of the midshipman who is most proficient in gunnery and ordnance, and the class of 1871 sword will be awarded for the same qualifications. The D. A. R. sword will be presented to the midshipman excelling in practical seamanship, and the M. O. F. W. watch will be given for excellence in mathematics.

Award will also be made of the Maury prize, the Van Dyke prize, the Thompson prize, the Comdr. James Edward Palmer prize, the New York Times' prize and the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks' prize.

The Gardner L. Caskey Memorial prize will be presented to the midshipman who graduates at the head of his class, and commendatory letters to graduates who have demonstrated exceptional fitness as midshipmen.

What Fighting Men Get

THE New York Times, in a news story last Monday, gave details of service pay in a manner that should enlighten many persons as to the prevailing meagre salaries paid to the nation's fighting men.

Discussing the battle fleet at anchor in the Hudson, The Times' story said: "Officers and men combined draw an average daily pay of less than $2.50. The monthly payroll for the sixty-five ships amounts to about $2,362,000; yesterday the sailors and their officers, whether afloat or ashore, earned about $75,000. On the Texas, a typical battleship, the payroll for a crew of 1,200 men and about eighty officers is approximately $100,000 a month."

Defends Navy Society

THE FOLLOWING excerpts from a letter written by a retired Marine Corps officer to the editor of Liberty Weekly in protest against that magazine's recently published article "The Guantanamo Blues," which purported to describe social conditions among the officer class at the Guantanamo station, will prove of interest to all Navy men and women:

"Sir:

"As a constant reader of 'Liberty,' and one who has worn the uniform of his country for 50 years, I may be permitted to voice my protest against the publication in its pages of a scurrilous attack upon, and what I consider to be a libelous aspersion of, that branch of the nation's service to which I belong—the Navy.

"In your issue of April 12, 1930, appeared an article entitled 'The Guantanamo Blues' which purports to have been written by 'A Navy Wife.' It paints a picture of the social life of the Navy at the Guantanamo Naval Station, Cuba, one of our fueling stations abroad and the base for the United States Fleet when operating in the Caribbean. This screed is scandalously overdrawn and offensively highly colored, if not basely untrue.

"You might be interested to learn that, in spite of the author's attempt to hide behind her anonymous pseudonym 'A Navy Wife,' her identity is known to the Navy and her own reputation is none too savory. Her loyalty as a wife may be easily judged by her disparaging references to her own husband. She has tarred him, as well as all the other Navy husbands, with the same stick and has painted the entire Service, from the Admiral of the fleet through the Captains of the ships down to the youngest Ensigns, as a pack of rum-guzzling blackguards, ruffians and libertines.

"With 49 years of active service to my credit and having served either afloat or ashore at all of our naval stations at home and abroad, I have never seen any such conditions as this alleged 'Navy Wife' represents as existing at Guantanamo. I cannot believe that one tenth of her article is true. It simply couldn't be without some one of the high command finding it out and bringing the few offenders (for there may be a few) to account.

"One of the 'Articles for the Government of the Navy' the fundamental law of the Navy—and which is required to be read monthly on board every vessel may well be quoted here:

"The commanders of all fleets, squadrons, naval stations, and vessels belonging to the Navy are required to show in themselves a good example of virtue, honor, patriotism, and subordination; to be vigilant in inspecting the conduct of all persons who are placed under their command; to guard against and suppress all dissolute and immoral practices, and to correct, according to the laws and regulations of the Navy, all persons who are guilty of them; and any such commander who offends against this article shall be punished as a court-martial may direct."

"I cannot believe, and I refuse to let the public believe, that the obligations imposed by the foregoing article are dead letters. If the conduct of this woman's husband has not been punished with the court martial and dismissal it so richly deserves, it is only a question of time before he will be brought to book, and that perhaps is the basis of her grouch against the Service as a whole. Why 'Liberty' should stoop to spread her venom to the four winds is not clear.

"Navy wives as a class who, as well as their husbands, are excoriated and maligned, object—and rightly so—to being included under the nom de plume assumed by this quondam 'College Widow,' remembering, of course, that she always has the unquestioned right to speak for herself as an individual.

"Of course, 'the Eden of the tropics isn't just what fancy paints, and single men in barracks aren't all just plaster saints—but, the social life of our naval communications—officers and wives—is no worse, if not better, than it is elsewhere under the benign influence of that 'noble experiment,' Prohibition, the which was righteously intended to reform the world. It seems to me that the havoc it has played with the morals of men and

IN THE SADDLE

Ft. Hamilton (Special)—The First Division opened its polo season Sunday, May 11, with an unofficial game between the first and second teams at Ft. Hamilton, N. Y. The two teams were designated as the Whites and Blues, respectively. The Whites, after handicapping the Blues three goals, came from behind to win by the score of 10 to 6.

The game attracted approximately 5,000 spectators, which broke all attendance records for an opening game.

The line-up:

Pos.	Blues (6)

Capt. Wise	No. 1. Lt. Hutchins
Lt. Kiefer	No. 2. Lt. J. D. Scott
Capt. D. M. Scott	No. 3. Lt. Pierce

Ft. Meade, S. D. (Special)—Attended by nearly two score guests, including about a dozen civilians from Rapid City, Lead, Deadwood and Sturgis, the Ft. Meade Officers' Sunday morning riding club covered six or seven miles of delightful trails on the reservation, winding up at the swimming pool in the South Pasture, where the party enjoyed an outdoor breakfast served by the caterers of the Officers' Club.

Ft. Francis E. Warren (Special)—The Hunt Ride, held Sunday, May 4, was in the form of a paper chase and developed keen interest among the riders.

Lt. C. R. Farmer was in charge of the hunt and Corp. Thomas, Headquarters Battery, 76th Field Artillery, was the "fox."

Corp. Thomas left a trail of confetti across the plain north of the post which zigzagged among the hills and draws, making an intricate trail to follow.

After following the trail for some time the "fox" was discovered by Capt. H. L. Watson and Lt. N. M. Lynde. The "fox" attempted a getaway, but was headed off by Gen. C. R. Howland, who, riding like a Russian Cossack, turned him back into the circle of "hunters," where he was tagged by Lt. Wade Killen. Gen. Howland, who was close on his heels tagged him an instant later. Mrs. D. J. Cragun was the first lady to reach the "fox," beating Mrs. N. M. Lynde by a few seconds.

Prizes were presented Lt. Killen and Mrs. Cragun.

Ft. Riley, Kans. (Special)—The Ft. Leavenworth polo team has accepted an invitation from the Cavalry School to compete in a series of polo games at Ft. Riley. Games will be played Wednesday, May 28, Sunday, June 1, and in the event of a third game, Tuesday, June 3.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Campbell King attended both games. Members of visiting teams were introduced to Gen. and Mrs. King by Maj. Charles Lyman, post polo representative.

It will be required, the War Department has announced, that all officers of Cavalry and Field Artillery below field grade, who are on duty with mounted and horse-drawn units of the Regular Army, pursue a practical course in prevention and first-aid treatment of diseases and injuries of animals such as to insure that each officer of the grades indicated is capable of properly protecting the interests of the Government in connection with the animals of the command or unit with which he may be serving.

The railbirds at the National Capital Horse Show have had the treat of witnessing a Major General of the United States Army exhibiting his well-bred mounts at Bradley Farms, May 14, 15, 16 and 17. Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, Chief of Cavalry, headed a group of officers and enlisted men who had made entries at the National Capital Horse Show.

Luke Field (Special)—Lt. T. L. Boyd, Staff Sgts. H. Alexander and J. Becker, and Pvt. H. L. Cowan were forced down in the shark-ridden channel between Hawaii and Maui on May 14. Two Army amphibians and a Navy seaplane were forced down in an effort to rescue the bomber's crew, and floundered about in the channel. At last report, two of the bomber's crew, whose identity could not be ascertained because of incomplete wireless facilities of the ship rescuing the other fliers, were still unaccounted for.

1st Division Notes

Camp Dix—The detachment of the 1st Ordnance Company which has been on detached service at Madison Barracks, N. Y., engaged in the inspection and repair of the arms of the 1st Division troops at that station, returned to Miller Field last week and has rejoined the 1st Ordnance Company at Camp Dix for target practice.

The 1st Tank Company assisted the New York City Fire Department in extricating fire engines from the swamp at Oakwood Beach, Staten Island, N. Y., when six pumpers became mired while fighting the disastrous bungalow colony fire at that place. These fire engines were so deeply mired that the equipment of the fire department was unsuccessful in removing them. During the process the tank itself became mired and it was necessary to use a second tank to extricate the first one. Oakwood Beach is about two miles south of Miller Field on the shore of Lower New York Bay. The loss from this fire, which began as a brush fire and then spread to the beach bungalow colony, was nearly three quarters of a million dollars.

Plattsburg Bks.—Mrs. Russell C. Langdon and Mrs. Sanford, a committee from the Church Woman's League for Patriotic Service, spent a day recently with the commanding officer in consultation in regard to the erection of a permanent chapel at Plattsburg Barracks.

Prospects for the erection of a small Gothic stone structure and the endowment of this chapel are very promising.

Ft. Jay—The 16th Infantry Band, Colors and Escort, composed of four squads of Company "F," attended the memorial services sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in honor of the one hundredth and eighth anniversary of Gen. Grant, held at Grant's Tomb on Riverside Drive. The escort was commanded by Capt. Wilbur E. Bashore; 2nd Lt. Francis E. Haskell acted as marshal of the formation.

A provisional battalion of the 16th Infantry of Ft. Jay, composed of members of Companies E, F, G, and H, Headquarters and Service Company, organized into two companies of two platoons of three squads each, attended a ceremony in honor of the Gold Star Mothers at the City Hall in New York City. The troops were commanded by Capt. Charles F. Cooper, 1st Lt. Raymond E. Bell, 2nd Lt. Francis W. Haskell, and 2nd Lt. William A. Lokey, Inf. Res. The 16th Infantry was given the place of honor at the ceremony, with marines and sailors on their left and the 1st Battalion, 69th Regt., New York NG on the right. Acting Mayor MacKee, in the absence of the Mayor of New York City, represented the city and Commissioner William F. Deegan was the Master of Ceremonies.

The 16th Infantry Band, under the leadership of Warrant Officer Carl A. Fisher, composed of 39 pieces, went to Pier 4, United States Lines, at Hoboken, N. J., and played from 9:45 a. m. until about 11 a. m. to the Gold Star Mothers prior to their sailing for France on board the steamship "America."

The band journeyed to Princeton next day to play for a review by the ROTC Unit of Princeton University. The band later furnished concert music at a tea given by the Professor of Military Science and Tactics, which was attended by the Corps Area Commander and other distinguished guests.

Madison Bks.—On May 13 the 2nd Bn., 7th Field Artillery at Madison Barracks witnessed the presentation of the Distinguished Service Cross to Mr. Cyrus Garnsey, Jr., the father of 2nd Lt. Cyrus Garnsey, 3d, 7th FA, who was killed in action near Broys, France, May 18, 1918. After the presentation of the Cross the Battalion passed in review. Lt. Col. Francis A. Ruggles, 7th FA, who commanded the 7th FA during the battle in which Lt. Garnsey was killed, made the presentation.

Ft. DuPont—The movement of Company C, 1st Engineers, Ft. DuPont, Del., to Camp Devens, began May 9, when the company loaded its equipment. The company is expected to return to Ft. DuPont about Aug. 15.

Ft. Wadsworth—In a very keen competition of close and extended order drill Company M, 16th Inf., was victor over Company H, 18th Inf. Previously Company M, 16th Inf., had defeated the other two machine gun companies in the 16th Infantry, thereby earning the right to compete in the brigade drill.

National Guard Notes

Columbus, Ohio, (Special)—Rating achieved by the Ohio National Guard at Federal inspection this year, still incompletely gathered, will be at least 125 Very Satisfactory and 50 Satisfactory, against 115 and 69 last year.

Baltimore (Special)—The Service Section, Service Battery, led the 110th Field Artillery in drill attendance for April, with 95.61 per cent. The 1st is the leading battalion, with 83.07. Regimental percentage, 82.04.

Atlanta (Special)—Maj. Gen. Ephraim G. Peyton, commanding the 30th Division, in a radio address on May 13 stressed a little-realized reason for existence of the National Guard when he said:

"Two generations and more ago we were a nation of expert shots. The rifle was in constant use; it offered protection to the pioneer and played an important part in providing his food. Natural skill in woodcraft, in ability to see without being seen, to move forward without attracting an enemy or flushing game, or what we now call scouting and patrolling, acquired by the pioneer through influences of environment increased the skillful and effective use of his rifle in individual and home defense as well as in hunting. Movement over great distances was accomplished principally by marching on foot or horseback. The making and breaking of camp under varied weather and climatic conditions were matters of usual routine.

"Modern means of rapid and luxurious travel, by air, rail, water and motor, have practically relegated marching on foot and horseback as well as the making and breaking of camp to the category of lost arts, that must now be bought and paid for during the summer camps of the National Guard, if they are to be revived for effective use by that component of our Nation's Defenders.

"Let us suppose that the citizen soldier is given adequate facilities for instruction in scouting and patrolling and in the skillful use of his rifle, to the extent that he can stop an attacking enemy with each shot fired from his clip of five cartridges, but the untrained citizen expends his five shots and makes only one hit. Manifestly it would require, in a military emergency, five untrained citizens to do the work of one citizen, highly trained in the use of his rifle."

Civilian Airports Better

ARMY and Navy landing fields contrasted rather unfavorably with municipal and commercial airports on the transcontinental flight made recently by Lt. Comdr. F. B. Stump, USN. Comdr. Stump with AMM1c E. F. Trimborn, flew from Hampton Roads to San Diego last month visiting many airports through the southern and western states.

With one exception, every town over 10,000 population over which Comdr. Stump passed had excellent airport facilities, and this town is now building a new landing field, he said. In the West, many little places of less than 3,000 inhabitants have airports with modern fuel and hangar facilities. Gasoline was universally stored in underground tanks from which it is delivered at 40 pounds pressure to the airplane through an automatic quantity registering device.

The modern systems in use at these airports stood in contrast to him with the service fields he visited.

Partly Favor Speaks Bill

THE chief purpose of Mr. Speak's bill, H. R. 10478, the incorporation of members of the National Guard into the Army of the United States, would, the War Department reports to the House Military Committee, "be a step toward that unity of command, and indoctrination that experience has shown to be vital to success in war." Incidental provisions of the Speaks bill, however, are regarded by the department with disfavor.

The department declares against any legislation at this time that will change existing laws regarding the Organized Reserve or the Officers' Reserve Corps. It does not believe in a limitation or modification of the functions of the Militia Bureau.

"The department," the communication reads, "does not favor legislation contemplating the transfer of officers between the two reserve components that would exist under this bill—the National Guard of the United States and the Organized Reserves. These components should be as distinct in this respect as the bill makes them in other respects. Each has its own peculiar requirements and should have its own conditions for appointment, assignment, and termination of appointment without regard to the other component. Transfers between the components, or any provisions of law requiring appointment in one component upon termination of service in the other are undesirable and would serve no good purpose. Appointment in either component should rest squarely upon the need for the officer's services and his qualifications for appointment."

Public Works Bill Passes

FINAL approval to the Navy public works bill was obtained this week with the acceptance by both Houses of the conferees' report. The measure has been sent to the President for signature.

Authorization for a floating drydock at San Diego was obtained when the House agreed to put this item back in the bill. It was contained in both the Senate and House bills originally, but struck out on the floor of the House by amendment. The provision in the Senate bill allowing the leasing of the dry dock at New Orleans was incorporated in the bill, with some clarification of the language of this item.

The House insisted on the cut in the amount to be spent for new commandant's quarters at the Naval base in the Canal Zone, and the Senate conferees agreed to this amendment.

Tribute to Mothers

F. TRUBEE DAVISON, Acting Secretary of War, delivered an address in which he paid tribute to the mothers of soldiers at the annual Mother's Day exercises of the American War Mothers in Arlington Cemetery, Sunday, May 11. The ceremonies were held at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The Acting Secretary said in part: "It is supremely fitting that this sacred spot should be chosen as the scene of tribute to the primary sources of our honor, our strength and our civilization—to American womanhood and motherhood. Not alone is this appropriate because of the sanctity of the surroundings. We should also inscribe deeply on our hearts the thought that the supreme sacrifice of manhood is so generally accompanied by the supreme sacrifice of motherhood. Not every soldier is called upon to give his all for his country, but every soldier's mother must inevitably undergo the supreme sacrifice of parting. For every soldier's Calvary there are a hundred mothers' Gethsemanes."

ON THE RANGES

NATIONAL GUARD units were recently apprized of the policy of the War Department in respect to target ranges.

The department will not approve the selection of a site for a National Guard target range until assured that it is satisfactory from the points of view of training, transportation and tenure. The site must be on ground owned by the Government or the State, or upon which has been secured a lease for a sufficient number of years to justify the expenditure of Government funds for its development; it must be suitable for use as a target range with the weapons supplied to the troops for which it is intended, and it must be reasonably convenient as to location.

States desiring Federal funds to establish ranges are to apply through the Corps Area commanders and the Chief of the Militia Bureau. The questions to be answered in such applications are given in the letter of March 12, 1930, from The Adjutant General's Office—AG 354.14 (2-26-30) Misc. M-D.

The National Trophy for excellence in rifle marksmanship has been awarded to the following units of the National Guard:

Service Company, 169th Inf., Hartford, Conn.; Troop B, 102d Cav. Newark, N. J.; Battery D, 249th CA, Klamath Falls, Ore.

Maj. Gen. William G. Everson, Chief of the Militia Bureau, has sent letters of congratulation and commendation to the commanding officers of the units concerned.

Ft. Francis E. Warren (Special)—The final standing of companies of the 20th Infantry firing in the Hodge Trophy match was announced by the commanding officer, 20th Infantry, on a basis of average percent per man, as follows:

Band, 89.96; Headquarters Company, 83.48; Company D, 82.12; Company M, 81.71; Company H, 71.82.

Upon the basis of the above the Hodge Trophy for small bore pistol firing is awarded to the Band for the year 1930.

High individual qualification scores were made as follows:

Pvt. Melvin T. Hostler, Hq. Com., 96.83; Pvt. Ralph Pependrea, Band, 97; Cpl. H. K. Roberts, Company M, 96.83; Pvt. Ralph Pependrea, Band, 96.50; Pvt. First Class John C. Lienbaugh, Band, 96.16; Capt. G. K. Crockett, Company D, 96; Sgt. Arthur M. Ruly, Band, 96; Pvt. Ora Davis, Company D, 95.83; Pvt. Robert D. Neel, Band, 95.83; Cpl. David J. Williams, Company H, 95.66.

Ft. Meade, S. D. (Special)—A force of enlisted men under the supervision of Major Jay K. Colwell, 4th Cavalry, is working daily on the Post's rifle range getting it ready for the summer's target practice. Camp Larson, N. J. (Special)—Competition for places on the N. J. NG rifle team to engage at Camp Perry began here on May 2, and will be held at intervals until July 26. When the National Guard schedule permits, the Organized Reserves, the State Police, rifle clubs and civilians are allowed access to the local ranges. The N. J. NG rifle team will be selected on July 26, and go into training on Aug. 1.

Troops from Ft. Thomas, under Lt. Col. A. A. Hickox, are at the Colgate range for target practice.

East Haven, Conn. (Special)—June 14-15 rifle matches on the State Range here will be the basis for selection of the Conn. NG team to fire in the national matches at Camp Perry.

Found Guilty of Fraud

DISMISSAL from the service was ordered in G. C. M. O. 5 in the case of Maj. Edwin H. Chase, OD, accused of attempt to defraud a private in the Ordnance Department of $500 loaned him by the private, tendering the latter five shares of a stock of doubtful, if any value, with the claim that, instead of lending the officer the money, the soldier had given it to him for investment.

The dismissed officer's last station was at Raritan Arsenal.

Born in Tusculum, Ala., 64 years ago May 10, Adm. Jackson has spent 47 years in the naval service. He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1887, and was honorably discharged in 1889. The following year he was restored to service by special act of Congress, "for conspicuous gallantry on occasion of the wreck of the Trenton at Apia, Samoa, March 27, 1889."

He has been promoted through all the ranks, reaching his present rank in 1921. During the World War, Adm. Jackson served as special representative of the Navy Department at Ministry of Marine and naval attaché, in Paris. Since then he has held various high commands, commanding the Battle Fleet in 1926. Ingalls Speaks

NAVAL aviation's place in our national defense was the theme of a radio address delivered at the New York Air Show by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ingalls.

In a brief talk Mr. Ingalls told of the organization of naval aviation and of its necessity as a part of the Navy, as distinguished from Army aviation.

He divides naval aviation into three parts: planes operating from shore, patrolling our ports and lanes of commerce; those attached to battleships and cruisers used as scouts and as part of the fighting units of each ship; and thirdly, the airplanes operating on the carriers, which he described as "complete units with great destructive power to be used for protection against the attacks of any other country's fleets or bases."

His remarks in part follow: To those of you who may happen to be listening in, may I say that I am delighted to have this opportunity of telling you something of naval aviation? For, outside, perhaps, of a few living along the Pacific Coast, off whose shores our Fleet and Naval Aviation generally operate, the people of our country have had no opportunity to see or learn much of the wonderful way in which our Navy has adopted this new weapon of warfare and made it an integral part of our naval operations.

Perhaps I can best picture it to you by placing it side by side with our Army Air Service. As you all know, we have an Army to fight for us on land, a Navy to fight for us at sea. And similarly, we have developed two aero-plane forces, the Army air service to operate over land and Naval aviation to operate over the sea. The difference between naval aviation and army aviation is probably very little appreciated, and yet, from a military standpoint, the difference in the operation is as great as is the operation of, say, a gun on a ship and a gun on shore.

The extent of the development of naval aviation can only be truly appreciated if we realize that although the use of planes as fighting machines over land was fully developed in the World War, their use as such over the sea was then almost unknown. Outside of a certain amount of sea patrol by means of the flying boat, there was no such thing as we now know naval aviation, and yet today we find our Navy with over 800 planes based on the coast, on the carriers, and on every war ship of any size. These planes are used to scout, to spot, to bomb, and to torpedo enemy ships and to fight other planes. Aviation today is an integral part of our fleets, and the efficient training and demand for only the best of personnel and material which has been a traditional characteristic of our Navy for years, has brought about this most satisfactory result.

No consideration of our naval aviation would be complete without some mention of lighter-than-air craft development. The Navy, and the Navy alone, has for years nursed and petted along this great science, this great future means of protection of our country. Unappreciated and misunderstood until only the last few months, the Zeppelin would today have been a thing of our country's past and other countries' future but for naval aviation. Fortunately, however, this art has been kept alive and today naval aviation is having built in Akron, Ohio, by the Goodyear Company, two great dirigibles, great far beyond anything existing elsewhere today.

The gigantic Zeppelins, carrying on board as part of their regular complement a few fighting and bombing planes which may be readily launched and later taken on board again will furnish our country an incomparable means of scouting over the seas, yes, even by use of those planes carried within, a means of interrupting enemy commerce and transport, a means of disabling single enemy war ships and, perhaps, even a means of annoying and harassing an enemy fleet.

I regret that I have not time to tell you of the wonderful personnel of our naval aviation, of the excellency of our planes, and of the great benefits to commercial aviation, such as the development of the air-cooled engine, resulting from our research and development. I hope that I have, at least, enabled you to appreciate that our country has today a highly efficient force of aircraft and personnel for operations at sea and along our coasts,—a naval aviation of which it may justly be proud.

Army Bills Pass

WITH Senator Reed back in the chamber of the Senate, that body passed five Army bills.

Authorization for the construction of barracks at Ft. McKinley to cost $50,000 was obtained with the passage of H. R. 707. Similar authorization was obtained to acquire land adjoining the Maxwell Flying Field, and for the exchange of land at the Catoosa Springs Target Range. H. R. 3527, allowing the credit in the disbursing accounts of certain officers of the Army of individual claims approved by the War Department went through unanimously.

These four measures, having already passed the House, now go to the President for signature. A Senate bill, S. 2567, granting travel pay and other allowances to Spanish War soldiers discharged in the Philippines was also passed.

S. 465, to give war-time rank to retired officers and former officers of the Army was held up when Senator Dill, of Washington, asked that it go over, he stating that he had received a number of letters objecting to it and wanted time to look into it.

The three other bills objected to were S. 23, to regulate the procurement of motor transportation in the Army; S. 4017, repealing the expiration date of the act of May 29, 1928, and S. 4108, to provide for the reimbursement for expenditures made for the upkeep and maintenance of property under the control of the Secretary of War.

SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1930

"The Military services need capable men, and in order to attract them the differential between compensation in these services and in private employments cannot safely be continued at the present figure."—CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER.

SENATOR REED'S ELECTION AS chairman of the Congressional Pay Commission will occur in a few days. This is good news. Senator Jones, the present chairman, has ability, but lacks special knowledge of the Services and their situation. Senator Reed, on the other hand, is thoroughly acquainted with the facts, and has made no secret of his view that they justify an increase in pay. Moreover, Senator Reed, when he takes hold of a problem, presses for a solution.

THERE IS COMING to Washington further evidence of nationwide interest in an upward revision of service pay schedules. More Chambers of Commerce and more associations are adopting resolutions in favor of action. With the country feeling as it does, the Pay Commission should respond without further delay. Mr. Reed may be expected to confer promptly with Congressman French, who has been actively on the job, and after he has familiarized himself with what has transpired, call a meeting of the commission. Then a program of work, including hearings, will be outlined.

AS WE HAVE HITHERTO stated, we do not expect the Commission to make a report at this session, though there is a possibility of such action, with Senator Reed in the chair. But at least, the Commission will be ready with its recommendations at the next session, and the bill it drafts should have an excellent chance of enactment. Our only fear is the depressed business situation of the country. If that improve by fall, there should be no reason for refusal to grant the increase determined.

COL. ULYSSES S. GRANT, III, did not accept the management of the municipal affairs of Cincinnati. Had he done so his salary would have been $25,000 annually, quite a jump from the meagre pay he has been receiving as an officer of the Army. The Chicago Tribune, the other day had an editorial on Cincinnati's search to which we invite the attention of pacifists. "This country," said the Tribune, "has no cause to fear the rise of a sword-waving, arrogant military caste. That is a bogey invented for us by alien minded persons whose knowledge of armies, if any, was gained in foreign lands."

PACIFISTS ALSO MAY be interested in the action of the Third Infantry, stationed at Ft. Snelling, in naming as an honorary member Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State and negotiator of the Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty. We have said before and we repeat now that the Army and the Navy are the greatest opponents of war. It is their breasts which first would be bared to bullets. But knowing what war is, feeling that by every honorable means it should be avoided, they want our country to be so strong as to assure other nations leaving it alone. In short, the Services are as earnestly anti-war as is Mr. Kellogg, and the Third Infantry, in its wise action, has expressed the general view of the military and naval arms.

TWO COMMITTEES of the Senate, those on foreign and naval affairs, are busily engaged in a thorough examination of the disarmament treaty reached at London. Our news columns epitomize the developments of the week. Senator Johnson has brought out that we have not gotten the parity we were assured, that Japan has enjoyed a superiority in cruisers which will continue for a time, at least, and that Great Britain will determine the size of our fleet by reason of the so-called "escalator" clause. It is apparent a fight is in progress, first, to prevent ratification of the Treaty at this session of Congress, and, second, during the summer recess to inform the people as to the real meanings and effect of the Treaty.

IN THE MEANTIME, we are having propaganda spewing forth from Geneva, where the League of Nations is meeting and where France and Italy are sparring over the question of the size of their respective navies. Mussolini has made it clear that his government is depending upon its own right arm, and in that connection the announcement comes from Rome that as many of the ships of the Italian merchant marine as possible are to be transformed so as to be available for service as auxiliary cruisers. Moreover, the Italian naval budget has been increased one-eighth, and for this year will amount to more than $75,000,000.

THE QUARTERMASTER GENERAL has shown wisdom in planning to provide "canned music" for organizations without bands. In authorizing the installation by the Radio Corporation of America of its product, he has assured a service which will be greatly appreciated by troops now lacking instruments. Of course the bands will not and should not go, but those in service will find themselves in competition with musicians employed by the Radio Corporation and will be spurred to greater effort. The bands are of the highest value and should be increased in number. But as this is not possible with the appropriations available we feel the Quartermaster General has taken the proper step to supply troops with music through the great Radio Corporation.

THE MARINE CORPS has suffered a distinct loss in the death of Maj. Gen. Barnett. Although retired from active service some years ago, the impress of his able administrative capacity and fine judgment continues as a moulding force upon the destiny of the great organization he adorned. Gen. Barnett's virtues were never flaunted by himself. Modest and unassuming, he was content to get results and let others have the credit. We are sorry he is gone, but the nation and the Marine Corps will not soon forget him or the high type of public service which he rendered.

Service Humor

Nothing That Harsh

A California man, suing his wife for divorce after less than two years of marriage says that she is "sullen, mean, irritable, morbid, disagreeable, nasty, gruesome, cool, bitter, jealous, heckling, picayunish, loathsome, insulting, brazen, miserly, gluttonish, temperamental, selfish, contemptuous, inattentive, uncivil, and inconsiderate."

It is obvious that one who chose from Roget with such care did not mean that she was uncongenial.

—Pittsburgh Rambler

Matter of Whose Ox Gored

Teacher: Johnny, what's the difference between a battle and a massacre?

Johnny: A battle is where a whole lot of whites kill a few Indians, and a massacre is where a whole lot of Indians kill a few whites.

—Brooks Field Weekly.

Nautical Zoology

Three country mothers were talking about their sons who had joined the Navy.

"Though Jack joined the Navy," said one, "he still loves dumb animals. He wrote and told me he came ashore the other day and picked up a chicken on Broadway."

"Just like my boy, Tom," said another. "When he was home on furlough last Christmas he was talking in his sleep, and he kept saying, 'Come on, feed the kitty—feed the kitty.'"

"My boy, Jack, has a kind heart, too," said the third. "He wrote home the other day and said he had put his shirt on a horse that was scratched."

—Our Navy.

An Impasse

When are Mabel and the retired gunner to be married?

Never.

Why, how's that?

Well, she won't marry him until he has paid his debts, and he can't pay his debts until she marries him.

In Lieu of a Blueprint

An Army junior had a quiz in science. The question was: "Define a bolt and a nut and explain the difference, if any." The boy wrote:

"A bolt is a thing like a stick of hard metal such as iron with a square bunch on one end and a lot of scratching wound around the other end. A nut is similar to a bolt only just the opposite, being a hole in a little chunk of iron sawed off short with wrinkles around the inside of the hole."

A Birdman

Col. Inf.: "My orderly whistles while he works."

Col. AC: "You're lucky. Mine only whistles."

Boy Connoisseur

Teacher (showing class a copy of the picture of Washington crossing the Delaware):

"Now, can any little boy or girl tell me the name of this picture?"

Small voice in the rear: "Sure, 'Sit down, you're rocking the boat!'"

—F'sle Banter.

A Long Breath

Sgt. (at morning calisthenics): "Breathing exercise—inhale at 'one,' exhale at 'two.' Ready, exercise. 'One, two; one, two; one—halt. Cease breathing. Rest.'"—H. W. H.

WHEN YOU ARE TRANSFERRED

ASK the Journal about living conditions, etc., at the Post to which you have been directed to proceed. Questions will be answered as soon as possible either in this column or by letters. Address Post Editor.

B. K.—Ft. Ruger is about six miles from Honolulu. Buses run into town and a street car runs within a mile of the post. There are frame and stucco quarters for married officers. Post bus carries children to and from city schools.

Ft. Shafter is three miles from Honolulu. A motor bus and street car run on schedule past the post. Married officers' quarters are of the bungalow type. A great many officers live off the post due to lack of quarters. There are many fairly good public schools in Honolulu but most Army people prefer sending their children to one of the several good private schools in order to avoid association with orientals. The University of Hawaii in Honolulu is really a great school. It specializes in agriculture.

ASK THE JOURNAL

ALL questions on which our readers desire information will be answered as soon as possible after receipt. If there is any query you have in mind, send it to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR. It will save you time and trouble. Avail yourselves of this "Service to the Services."

F. C. B.—There is little likelihood that you will receive orders for shore duty in the Eleventh Naval District within the next year. The waiting list for duty in this district is rather large and you are well down on the list.

IN THE JOURNAL

60 YEARS AGO

A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives providing that officers of the Navy shall have the same rate of pay as is now paid to officers of corresponding rank in the Army.

The Prussian Army has given new designations to their various large guns. The 4-pounder being rebaptized as the 8 centimeter gun; the 6-pounder—9 centimeter; the 12-pounder—12 centimeter; the 24-pounder—15-centimeter; the 72-pounder—21-centimeter; and the 96-pounder—24 centimeter gun.

Fifty-two survivors of the Oneida collision arrived in New York on the 9th on the Steamship Arizona.

Gen. Thomas Jordan, who has been directing the Cuban forces in the revolution there, arrived in New York this week. Gen. Jordan, a graduate of West Point, in the class of Sherman and Thomas, a veteran of Indian wars and border campaigns, as well as the Civil War on the southern side, gives some very interesting testimony as to conditions in Cuba. Some 30,000 men are enrolled in the revolutionist army of which 10,000 are armed.

The annual reunion of graduates of the Military Academy will be held on June 17. The business meeting will take place at 2 o'clock and the banquet at 8.

CAPT. VENABLE GOLF CHAMP
The Ft. Benning golf championship for 1930 was won by Capt. B. W. Venable, Inf., opposing Lt. Col. H. A. Wells, Inf., in the 36-hole final—four and two.

Capt. Venable played beautifully from the tees to the green. His approach work was the outstanding feature of his game. Col. Wells had trouble with pulled tee shots, but his putter performed excellently for him. Anything up to ten feet was as good as down in one putt.

Both players have many golfing honors behind them. Capt. Venable won the Panama Department championship on three successive occasions (1924-1925-1926). Reporting to Ft. Benning in 1926, he won the post championship for that year and in addition was runner-up in the Corps Area championship. Col. Wells won his first golf honors in 1915, by winning the championship of Schofield Barracks. Qualifying in the first flight for four consecutive years in the Kansas State championship, 1923-1924-1925-1926, his next major championship was in the 7th Corps Area tournament in 1926. He won the championship of Ft. Leavenworth in 1926 and 1927.

Both players came through their early matches in this year's play with comparatively little difficulty. A course in its best condition and ideal weather completed the championship setting.

SERVICE SPORTS

Athletic Group Formed

THE United Service Athletic Fraternity, created and promoted by the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A.'s, has been formed to honor outstanding all-round athletes who have attained a required standard of athletic excellence as measured by definite tests.

Its purpose is to afford recognition to the comparatively few service men who possess outstanding athletic versatility and ability, to stimulate the interest of individuals in a diversity of athletic activities, and to enlist the influence of members as outstanding athletes to help bring about a better understanding and appreciation of the place of athletic sports in the leisure time program of the community.

Any officer or enlisted man in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard may register an application for membership at any time. He will be received into membership with appropriate ceremonies when he has passed the qualification tests which must be completed prior to renewing civilian status.

Application forms may be secured at any Army and Navy Y. M. C. A.

Events may be prepared for and tests taken by arrangement with the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. at any place where facilities and officials are available and in the order which suits the contestant, or as circumstances require.

feated the Plebe baseball team, 10-3.

Baseball with Swarthmore and tennis with Union College are billed for the 21st. On the 24th N. Y. U. will be met on the track, Williams in tennis, Penn State (Varsity) and Peekskill Military Academy (Plebes) in lacrosse, and Dartmouth in baseball.

Naval Academy Sports

VARISITY'S crew goes to Cambridge, Mass., today to race against Harvard and M. I. T. At home, Varsity teams will meet Georgetown on both track and diamond, Syracuse in lacrosse, Lafayette in tennis, and the Quantico Marines on the outdoor rifle ranges. Plebes have a track meet with Tome School, a baseball game with Allentown (Pa.) Prep, lacrosse with Peekskill Military Academy and tennis with Central High School of Washington.

Navy achieved a 14-0 baseball victory over William and Mary on May 14.

The First Class basketball nine made it eight out of nine on May 10 with a 14-8 win over Wake Forest. Bauer and Schultz pitched for Navy, Taylor and Nussom for the visitors. Some beautiful outfield playing by Byng, Stroh, and Fitzgerald saved Navy in some dangerous predicaments. Lowrance, at third, played an excellent game.

An all-Navy day on the water was enjoyed at the Academy on May 10, three Syracuse crews succumbing. In the Plebe race, Syracuse led all the way down the course and was only headed by a desperate spurt in the last 20 strokes, the Plebes finishing three feet ahead. The Junior Varsity race was won by two lengths. Navy, although headed at the start of the Varsity race, won by a length and a half. This race marked Shelton's debut as stroke. Varsity time was 7:10, Junior Varsity 7:16, and Plebe 7:13.

Ohio State U. won, 75-51, in May 10's track meet. Navy won three events, Briner setting a new USNA record for the 440-yard run—49.5 seconds, Stewart and Kohlas trying to do likewise in the pole vault—12 feet 6½ inches, and Cook winning the shot put with a 42 feet 7½ inches cast. Navy took nine seconds and eight thirds.

Announcement of next year's captains and managers in three of the winter sports was made at the Naval Academy this week. They are:

Boxing—Captain, Ford L. Wallace, Ohio; manager, Henry E. Brossy, N. Y. Wrestling—Captain, Hugh D. Gray, Alaska; manager, Henry Williams, Jr., Virginia. Gymnastics—Captain, Billy W. King, Texas; manager, William C. Norvell, Georgia.

All are members of the class which graduates from the Academy next year.

Varsity meets the Washington Senators in baseball on May 19, and U. of Maryland in both baseball and tennis on the 21st. On the latter date the Plebes will meet the Freshmen of U. of Maryland in baseball, and Gilman Country School of Baltimore in tennis.

May 24 events will be: Varsity—Baseball, Mt. St. Mary's; track, U. of Maryland; lacrosse, Western Maryland; rifle, 71st Infantry, N. Y. NG, and intercollegiate. Plebes' only event for that day is a track meet with Georgetown Frosh.

No Allowance Authorized

ADDITION of a new paragraph to AR 35-5320 cites the case of an officer stationed at Ft. Monroe and ordered to the Philippines, with prior temporary duty at Edgewood Arsenal and New York. His family moved to Philadelphia in anticipation of the transfer to the Philippines. His order was revoked, and he was retained on duty at Ft. Monroe. The regulation, as now amended, holds:

"No right of payment of the commercial cost of transportation of dependents of the officer accrued under the act of June 10, 1922 (42 Stat. 631), by reason of his assignment to temporary duty while under orders to make a permanent change of station. Under his orders of June 4, they might have proceeded to New York City in time to take passage on the transport scheduled to sail on November 13, but the orders were amended before any travel thereunder was required and the officer reassigned to duty at his old permanent station. The fact that his dependents performed travel in anticipation of an assignment different from that ultimately received, and that on the entire series of orders the officer, except for incidental temporary duty, continued at his old station, gives no right under the law to payment for the cost of their transportation. See MS. Comp. Gen., February 15, 1930."

Bid For Transportation

FAILING to secure passage of his measure requiring that transportation of members of military and naval services be awarded by bid, as a rider to the Army supply bill, Senator John J. Blaine, Republican, of Wisconsin, introduced a bill to this effect on May 13.

By the terms of the bill, S. 4447, except in the event of national emergency, no money appropriated for the transportation of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and reserve forces shall be used unless bids have been requested from all common carriers and the lowest bid accepted, when the distance to be covered is under 200 miles.

For distance over 200 miles, troops must be transported over land grant railroads at the lowest net published rate if Government transportation is not available. For less distances, when bids must be requested motor buses and electric railways are allowed to submit bids. In all cases only parties of 10 or more come under the bill.

Cruiser Upkeep Costs

AN increase of $1,000 a year in the average for upkeep of 18 cruisers of the first line, requested by Rear Adm. George H. Rock, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Construction and Repair, before the House subcommittee on the Navy Appropriation Bill, was the subject of some discussion by Representative Burton L. French, chairman of the committee, at one of the hearings held on the bill.

Adm. Rock advised the Committee-men that the increase was required in the appropriation because the older vessels will need repairs in excess of the average which will more than offset the reduced cost of repairs on the new vessels put into service.

The total asked for the 18 cruisers was $450,000 as against $360,000 for 15 of the first line for the current year.

Ban Photos of Gas Devices

UNDER regulations recently published certain devices pertaining to gas defenses have been designated as secret material.

General Order No. 203 adds to the list of naval equipment which may not be photographed by news cameras and other civilian photographers, "filters, air circulating and purifying devices; gas mask stowage; gas defense apparatus and any gear or device used in connection with the removal or neutralization of agents employed in chemical warfare."

May Restrict School Details

THE WAR DEPARTMENT is contemplating and has submitted to Corps Area commanders, chiefs of branches, and the Chief of the Militia Bureau, a system of more stringent requirements for National Guard and Reserve Officers for detail to the Special Service Schools. Comments and recommendations have been requested of these chiefs by June 1.

According to the War Department scheme, selection of these officers during 1931 to attend schools having a special company, troop, and battery officers' course for National Guard and Reserve Officers will, as far as practicable, be limited to those who have demonstrated their proficiency in the subcourses of the basic course, and approximately one-half of the company (troop or battery) officers' subcourses of the extension course of the appropriate arm or service. For 1932 similar qualifications will be required under the new extension courses. Weddings.

A MARRIAGE of much interest in Navy circles took place on May 10 when Miss Jane Clark Patrick, debutante daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Bower Patrick, USN, became the bride of Lt. Julius L. Thompson, USN, son of Judge and Mrs. J. E. Thompson, of Bolling Green, Mo. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents at the Naval Base, Norfolk, Va., and the ceremony, which was performed by the bride's father, was witnessed by only members of the two families, relatives and guests from out of town. The wedding march was played by the Naval Base orchestra which also played during the reception which followed. The house was elaborately decorated with palms, cut flowers, trailing vines and cathedral candles.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Bower R. Patrick, Jr. She wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory colored satin made princess style, embroidered in seed pearls and embellished with old family point lace. Her veil of tulle fell in graceful folds over her long train and was arranged from a cap of lace and caught with a bandeau of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Elizabeth Patrick was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of Primrose yellow chiffon, long, with uneven hem line and short cape at the back. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. The bride's other attendants were another sister, Miss Alethea Patrick, her two cousins, Miss Georgianna Taliaferro and Miss Sue Hamet Tyler, and Miss Betty Cunningham of Philadelphia. Lt. William Terrell was the groom's best man. Following the ceremony there was a reception to which two hundred and fifty guests were invited.

The bride was graduated from Goucher College in 1929 and also attended the Westlake School in Los Angeles. She made her debut last Norfolk German Club. Lt. Thompson is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy of the class of 1921. He is now on duty at the Naval Base.

The marriage of Miss Mary Howard Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hughes of Raleigh, N. C., to Lt. Martin Rowland Peterson, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Luther Peterson of Beardstown, Ill., was solemnized on the morning of May 10 at the home of the bride in Raleigh before an improvised altar of roses, lilies of the valley, lilacs and ferns. The bride was preceded to the altar by her younger sister, Miss Margaret Frances Hughes, who wore an old-fashioned gown of yellow chiffon with poke bonnet to match and carried an arm bouquet of blue garden flowers.

The bride entered the drawing room with her father and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, William Henry Hughes, Jr., a brother of the bride. She wore an imported model of King's blue crepe Elizabeth with hat and accessories to correspond and her flowers were an arm bouquet of Pernet roses and valley lilies. The ceremony was performed by Dr. M. Bradshaw and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Fabius Brown, accompanied on the violin by Miss Charlotte Houston. Immediately following a wedding breakfast, Lt. and Mrs. Peterson left for an extended trip through the West.

All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., was the scene of a pretty military wedding May 10, when Miss Josephine Hancock Tompkins, daughter of Mrs. John T. Tompkins and the late Capt. John T. Tompkins, USN, became the bride of Lt. John Allen Scoville, USN, son of Mrs. Margaret E. Scoville. The ceremony took place at 4:30 o'clock, the Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating.

The church had an effective arrangement of white cut flowers, and palms were banked about the altar.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Lt. Rutledge B. Tompkins, USN, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory white satin fashioned on princess lines, the bodice designed with a yoke of rose point lace and long fitted sleeves and the long skirt falling into a train at the back. Her tulle veil fell from a bandeau of old point lace and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids, roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Elmeda Ansell was maid of honor. The other attendants were Miss Gladys Clark of New Bedford, Mrs. Hartwell Pond of Cambridge, Miss Ethel P. Butler of Quantico and Mrs. John A. Grammer of East Orange.

Mr. John T. Tompkins, jr., was the best man and the ushers selected were Lt. Comdr. Clifford Roper, Lt. John W. Roper, Lt. Edward R. Rose, Lt. William P. Tammany, Lt. Bion B. Bierer, jr., and Lt. Theodore G. Haff, USN. The ushers formed an arch with their sabers under which the bride and groom walked when leaving the altar.

A reception followed at the home of the bride.

Lt. Scoville and his bride left later for a wedding trip. They will be at home later in Boston, Mass., where Lt. Scoville has been ordered for duty. Lt. Scoville has just returned from a tour of duty in Haiti.

The marriage of Miss Marian Brooke and Lt. Donald Alexander Peerman, Inf., USA, occurred on Saturday, May 3, at Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg, Va.

Dr. Bentley, who officiated at the marriage ceremony, was assisted by Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin. The beauty of the church was enhanced by white blossoms and greenery and hundreds of friends and relatives of the young couple were present when they made their vows.

The bride's wedding gown of white satin and lace was finished on princess lines with long skirt and long close-fitting sleeves. The veil of tulle was made cap style with clusters of orange blossoms at each side and extended the entire length of the court train of the gown.

No Exam. For Graduates

OFFICERS who have graduated from the Naval War College, or who have completed a correspondence course in naval strategy and tactics will not have to take an examination in that subject when being examined for promotion unless found markedly deficient by the naval examining board in his written examination or record as to strategy and tactics, recently published orders state.

General Order No. 204 changes previous regulations in that, hitherto, exemption from such examination when officers had completed Naval War College courses was discretionary. The new order allows such courses to count unless the officer is marked deficient.

Completion of the War College correspondence course only excuses junior officers from examination as to strategy and tactics.

PRaises JOURNAL EFFORTS

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
Gentlemen: Inclosed find postal money order as my remittance for renewal of my subscription for one year.

I am grateful for the manner in which you are unqualifiedly backing the present effort to secure reasonable rates of pay in the six services. We enlisted men feel this is of paramount importance, not only to assure a higher morale but also to attract the better class of recruits and assure more reenlistments. Personal observation impels me to believe our officers are more seriously affected than we because of the higher standards they must maintain and because of frequent changes of station.

Your efforts on behalf of promotion legislation are deserving of equal praise as those for better pay. To the junior officer with present prospect of retirement in company or junior field grades, an assurance of a command appropriate to his age and experience would be of infinite value.

From your timely publication of orders I am kept in touch with many friends in the Army whom I have not seen in years. Other items too numerous to mention are keeping me in touch with the latest news in the Services.

Wishing you a continued and growing success, very rightfully earned, as you have demonstrated, I am, sirs,
Very sincerely yours,

J. A. PERRY,

REGARDING THE TREATY.

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
THE five principal members of the delegation sent to London in January by the President to negotiate the Naval Treaty consist of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Navy, the former Ambassador to Mexico and two United States Senators.

The Constitution of the United States provides, in Article 2, Section 1: "The Executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America." Section 2 of the same article says: "He shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, etc."

The underlying theory and principle of our government is that all functions and activities of the Federal Government come under some one of three separate branches, viz: Legislative, Executive, and Judicial. The Constitution directly states this and emphatically and clearly creates these three separate branches of government. It certainly was not the intention and has never been the practice in our history for any two of these three separate branches to overlap or to become confused with each other. While the Constitution vests the President with the power and authority to negotiate treaties, it vests the Senate with the authority to enact treaties into law. Where the Constitution speaks of "the Senate," it undoubtedly means the Senate as an entire legislative body, and can not possibly refer to any one or two members of that body. But the President selected two members of the Senate, one a Republican, the other a Democrat, on this Naval Delegation, to represent him and to negotiate a treaty in his behalf, in the face of the fact that the Constitution vests the negotiating of treaties solely in the Executive Branch of the Government. It would seem to me that this is an unconstitutional and unwarranted confusing and mingling of the three great branches of government.

The two Senators on the naval delegation must necessarily be committed to the ratification of the treaty when it is submitted to the Senate. In other words, two votes in favor of the treaty are already assured for the treaty before it reaches the Senate and even before it reaches the hands of the President.

From this it would seem that the treaty has been illegally negotiated, and as such, is not in any condition to be received by the Senate. Furthermore, I am of the opinion that if the treaty were ratified by the Senate, it would be an illegal ratification, subject to rejection by the Supreme Court.

The two United States Senators, in question, could not act as representatives of the Senate, because the Senate has no authority to negotiate. They could not act for their respective states, because the several states have no separate power in treaty making. They are in the Senate solely and exclusively as representatives of their respective state governments, and I do not quite see how any act of the chief executive could either enlarge or diminish, either their office or authority, as long as they represented their respective States as United States Senators.

Article 6 of the Constitution states: "This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; etc." I would like to ask, can a treaty, negotiated as this one has been negotiated, become the supreme law of the land, under the terms and specific provisions of the Constitution? In other words, if an intended law is to become a law, must not the method of its negotiation and enactment be as legal as the terms of the law itself?

The President some months ago appointed a commission to enquire into law enforcement. After having appointed this commission, it would seem rather strange that the chief executive and chief enforcement official of the entire government should have chosen a method embarrassing to himself and embarrassing to enforcement in general.

Yours truly,
GEORGE T. WATTS.

SUBSCRIBERS SINCE '69

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
I regret that I will not subscribe to the Journal again. Owing to the death of Col. F. B. Jones, my husband, I shall not need it.

My father and then my husband have been subscribers since 1869.

Our mail arrived once a week generally at old Ft. Sully, and after finishing my children's papers I was allowed to read the Journal. In 1870 we spent the winter at Ft. Thompson, Crow Creek Agency, in hastily constructed quarters of cottonwood slabs, upright, plastered or chinked with mud and mud roofs. Our house was grand—board, lined with adobe and plastered with mud. A kindhearted Indian Agent donated sufficient white wash for most of the house.

Alas, there was none for the guest room—behold, it was papered with Army and Navy Journals. As a child I stood on a chair and read the walls especially the French and Prussian War news. Having no playmates, only Indians around the fort and agency, we had no telegraphs—only that one mail a week. Still, we survived, and have made good, useful Army men and women. I thought this might amuse you in connection with the Journal.

Very truly yours,
MARGARET C. JONES,

AN IDEA TO BOOST PAY

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
I submit the following idea, in case it may be worth a second thought:

Hardly a day passes that the mail does not bring to each of us Service folk, retired or active, some advertising matter urging us to buy this or that or invest in the other. All of mine (until lately) has gone into my worn old wastebasket. But now, perhaps having nothing better to do, I read it over, more or less, and I never fail to wonder what sardonic jokester, or witless optimistic exponent of "salesmanship-by-mail" is sending such stuff to so poor a prospect as a retired officer.

The cheerful fellows who flood our mail with these sensationally enticing bits of sales propaganda apparently have not waked up to the fact that the "List and Directory" no longer furnishes a good and reliable "sucker list." Those of us who happen to enjoy outside incomes may still be good prospects for books, insurance, stocks and whatnot, but the great mass of Service people who are dependent on their pay alone can hardly buy enough things now-a-days from these mail order concerns to pay for the elegant literature they dispense.

Service pay, never robust, is now suffering from pernicious anaemia. Surely, the report of the Interdepartmental Pay Board has made that fact sufficiently plain to all who can read and understand English! Yet, a multitude of hopeful salesmen still inform us, by mail, of the wonderfully opportune and desirable bargains they have picked out especially for our benefit. Is it all but a cruel joke? Are these glittering things of comparative comfort and luxury being dangled before our eyes to tantalize us?—us who can not buy them?

Or do the mail order people honestly believe that we of the Services are sharing the general prosperity of our country and that we are able to buy their stuff, as does the average citizen, if we really want to? If so, they are decidedly not well informed. Moreover, it follows that they neither read the daily papers nor take note of the proceedings of their chambers of commerce. For how else could they have missed knowing that in regard to salary the Services are badly off—(and in underscoring that word "badly" I mean that it should not be qualified, mentally or otherwise, by any such word as "maybe.")

As I said, I now read all my advertising mail. It might be well if we all did the same. In the first place, it gives an idea of what the average citizen of our country is able to afford—for somebody (many somebodies in fact) must be buying constantly, else all these things would not be so expensively advertised. In the second place, it is really a Christian duty to tell the senders that their kind and well-meant efforts in our behalf are at present an economic waste.

So, for some time, I have carefully returned all such literature whence it came, with courteous thanks for the privilege of having been allowed to see it, together with a brief statement of the reasons for its return, including a few pertinent remarks as to the present standing, both in and out of Congress, of Service Pay Revision. If we all did the same I am sure the mail order people would be grateful to us for showing them how to save much useless expense, and they might, in a spirit of mutual helpfulness, do something to speed the day when they can resume sending us sales literature with some prospect of its not being all wasted.

Cavalry to Test Gasses

MIMIC warfare between the Border Cavalry Patrol and the 2nd Division is being held along the Nueces River southwest of San Antonio, Tex., from May 7 to 17.

A considerable quantity of tear gas candles is being supplied the opposing armies and though it is quite harmless, it may render temporarily hors de combat either force through a profusion of tears. In addition to tear gas, extensive tests are being made as to the efficacy of smoke, released through the use of candles. In actual warfare these chemicals would be released through airplanes, artillery, chemical mortars and cylinders, hand and rifle grenades and candles. However, the use of missiles in obviously impracticable in peace-time maneuvers and only smoke candles are being employed.

One of the important lessons to be learned is the nature of the steps to be taken to minimize the effect of tear gas against men and animals not equipped with gas masks.

AERONAUTICAL NOTES

PASSAGE of the Vandenberg-Kahn bill just introduced would give the Army a $4,500,000 metal-clad airship with a maximum speed of 100 miles an hour, 25 miles more than that of the Graf Zeppelin, it was declared at Scott Field. Eight engines would give the blimp 4,800 horsepower.

The ship will be 547.2 feet long, with a maximum width of 119.5 feet, displacing 3,806,500 cubic feet of air and having a gas volume of 3,758,300 cubic feet.

Provisions for 30,000 rounds of ammunition, one 37 millimeter gun, 5,000 to 15,000 pounds of bombs, two airplanes, ten machine guns and a 1,000 watt searchlight are included in the plans.

The weight of the ship would be 151,400 pounds, with a useful load of more than 200,000 pounds.

The annual machine gun and bombing matches of the Army Air Corps will be held at Langley Field, starting Sept. 1. The Secretary of War recently addressed a letter to the Secretary of the Navy expressing the hope that it will be possible for participants from the Navy and Marine Corps to enter.

The participants will include one team from each pursuit, bombardment, attack and observation squadron in the United States and the Panama Canal Department, not to exceed four teams from the Air Corps Training Center; not to exceed five teams from the Air Corps at large; not to exceed five teams from the National Guard Air Corps; such teams as may be designated by the Secretary of the Navy, the personnel to be selected from the Naval Air Service and the Marine Corps Air Service; one team (observation, attack, bombardment or pursuit) from the Air Corps Tactical School, Langley Field; two teams (observation, attack, bombardment or pursuit) from Wright Field; two teams (observation, attack or pursuit) from office of the Chief of the Air Corps and Bolling Field.

Tests are being conducted at the Naval Air Station, Anacostia, on a "Dicks" hollow steel propeller, which was manufactured by the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Company. This propeller is of approximately the same weight as the solid alloy propeller of like design.

Experiments were conducted at Annapolis recently looking toward more safe night landings. Lights were attached to several buoys in the sea-plane landing areas near the USS Reina Mercedes and a night flight was made to test out the efficiency of this form of illumination. As it proved to be unsatisfactory further investigations are being made with a view to providing a clearly marked and fairly lighted area for night landings.

Capt. John K. Cannon, senior instructor in pursuit training at the AC Advanced Flying School, Kelly Field, recently sailed for Europe, where for four months he will demonstrate Curtiss military airplanes. Lt. James H. Doolittle, resigned, and Lt. James Parker, Wright Field, are also under engagement with the Curtiss Company for this work.

Chanute Field (Special)—The department of photography of the AC Technical School recently made a tri-lens photo of 1,000 square miles of quadrangle in the State of Illinois for the U. S. Geological Survey. Lts. Spary and Stowell, student officers, made a 30-mile mosaic of the Chicago waterfront in this connection.

Under contract from the Navy Department, Boeing Airplane Company is building a special landing gear for one of the Navy's Boeing pursuit planes to mount a new air wheel recently developed. Tests will be watched with interest as to effect of the large tires on high speed and rough landing.

A bill has been introduced by Mr. Wurzbach authorizing acquisition of about 1,000 acres of land for aerial bombing range purposes at Kelly Field, by condemnation. This would settle certain damage claims against the government.

The new Boeing all-metal monoplane fighter, Model 205, has been demonstrated to the Navy Department and Les Tower, test pilot, put the new fighter through its paces and demonstrated it could be spun in either direction for more than twelve turns without difficulty. suits, six weeks ahead of schedule. The first 37 were flight tested and flown to destinations by pilots from the 1st Pursuit Group of Selfridge Field. Some planes are being shipped to Air Corps stations at Panama, Hawaii and the Philippines.

CAPT. A. W. STEVENS, AC, has succeeded in taking a photograph, covering a distance of 270 miles in one single exposure. This accomplishment adds almost 50 miles to the previous long distance photographic record established by Capt. Stevens last year.

The photograph was made in flight 20,000 feet above Crater Lake, Ore., and gives a remarkably clear picture of the various mountain ranges stretching northward to the lofty peak of Mt. Rainier 14,000 feet above the sea.

Capt. Stevens took the picture from an Army Air Corps photograph plane piloted by Lt. John Corkille.

"We didn't mind the low temperature as much as the lack of oxygen in the air," said Capt. Stevens. "We got the oxygen we needed from a liquid oxygen supply but finally had to come down after four hours when our supply was exhausted."

"I am inclined to believe that it will only be a matter of time before we will develop a camera that will record even greater distances. Before we can use it however, we must have a photographic plane that will take us considerably higher than 20,000 feet, because from that altitude even an object as tall as Mt. Rainier will sink below the horizon at 300 miles."

The lens used in the camera perfected by Capt. Stevens for long distance photography is of a peculiar red—so deep in shade that, to the naked eye, the lens seems black. This unusual shade is really a light filter which enables the camera to venture into distances which no ordinary lens could register. A highly sensitive film is also used.

Dirigible Base Hearing

favoring the San Diego site, stated that as the airship was still in an experimental stage as to its utility, it should be located near the base of the fleet, to enable frequent training to be had.

Chairman Britten wanted to know why, as the General Board had favored the San Diego site on grounds of strategic location, they had not declared for the San Francisco one. "You would mobilize your fleet in San Francisco Bay in the event of war, would you not?" he inquired.

"No," replied Adm. Chase. "In my opinion, it would probably mobilize off San Pedro."

This seemed to surprise Mr. Britten very much. He said that he had always believed the harbor at San Francisco was the only place on the Pacific coast where this would be done. He said that he had always had the impression that the fleet should not be brought together and based off an open coast line, citing the policy of the various navies during the World War.

Not Good Tactics

Adm. Chase answered that this would not be good tactics for operations in the Pacific. The policy there, he averred, should be an aggressive offensive one in war. "I do not mean that we should not build up base facilities at San Francisco," he added. "It would be an excellent base, but not the best mobilization point. We should not consolidate all facilities in one locality, but should have them in every port. If there should be one major base established, it would probably be placed at San Francisco. I do not conceive, however, of the fleet operating from one base."

Asked as to where another base would be located if the airship is found to be a successful naval weapon, Adm. Chase thought it would be in Hawaii.

Davison Opposes Bill

THE House joint resolution 184, which would authorize President Hoover to commission such persons as had been recommended for commissions prior to November 11, 1918, but who failed of appointment when the Armistice upset plans for further commissioning of officers in the military services, was the subject of an unfavorable letter from F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War, received by the House Committee on Military Affairs recently.

In advising against passage of the resolution, Mr. Davison pointed out that there is not at present any method of determining what persons should receive such commissions, except in cases where written recommendations had been made and that even written recommendations would by no means cover the entire list of deserving men. The commanders of many line outfits at the time of recommending men under them, Mr. Davison said, did not have access to writing materials or the time to write and consequently many meritorious cases would be overlooked with the result that there would be much discontent aroused among the eligible men.

The resolution provides for the commissioning of the men, their honorable discharge next day and stipulates that they should not receive any pay or gratuity of any kind while temporarily occupying their commissioned rank.

2nd Lt. R. E. O'Connor, CAC, to FA, May 9, announced.

Comptroller General Decisions

A-31380. (S) National Guard—Armory drill pay. Enlisted men of a company in the National Guard who do not wear uniforms at armory drills by reason of the fact that uniforms were not issued to them, such uniforms being available for issue by the unit commander, may not be credited with attendance at such drills for pay purposes, nor may their attendance be counted for qualifying the company officers for drill pay.

A-31541. (S) Pay—Army—Additional for mount. An officer required to be mounted, who provided himself with a suitable mount at his own expense, may continue to receive additional pay for such mount while on leave of absence from his duty station and while traveling under orders directing a permanent change of station.

Where an officer's privately owned mount was injured so as to render it unfit for further use as an Army mount, additional pay for such mount is not authorized after the injury.

A-30858. (S) Enlistment allowance—Navy.

An enlisted man of the Navy who upon expiration of his enlistment extended it for two years prior to May 21, 1928, is not authorized by the act of that date, 45 Stat. 620, to make up in the extended enlistment the time lost in the expired enlistment so as to increase the enlistment allowance which had accrued and been paid upon the extension of such expired enlistment.

A-31410. Transportation—Excess—Private mounts.

The excess cost to the Government for shipment of private mounts from place of purchase to new station is the entire cost of such shipment, less the difference, if any, between the cost to the Government computed on the basis of shipment of the entire authorized allowance, including the mounts, taking into consideration possible carload combinations and rates, from the old to the new station, and the amount paid on the shipment of household goods made to the new station.

A-28470, Sept. 17, 1929.

The excess cost to the Government for a separate shipment of private mounts made from place of purchase to the officer's permanent station may not exceed the actual cost thereof. 8 Comp. Gen. 490.

Opposes War Rank Bill

THE Navy Department is opposed to the promotion to the rank of rear admiral on the retired list of those officers who served as temporary rear admirals during the World War, but who were subsequently retired as captains.

Acting Secretary Jahncke in a letter to the House Naval Affairs gives an adverse report on H. R. 6312, which would so promote the eight captains affected. The Department does not believe in challenging the judgment of the selection boards which failed to choose these officers for permanent rank, he states.

In addition, Mr. Jahncke points out that retired officers are subject to recall to duty in emergency, and are then assigned to duties and responsibilities commensurate with their rank. Advancement in rank on the retired list is therefore not merely a distinction for the officer himself, Mr. Jahncke states, it fixes the character of duty to which he may be assigned on recall to active duty, and as these officers were not considered among the best fitted to perform the duties of the higher grades while on the active list, it would be difficult to so assign them at this time.

Cagle Inquiry Asked

AN investigation by the War Department to determine whether any officers at West Point knew that Cadet Christian K. "Red" Cagle, star Army back, was married during the time he was playing football for the Military Academy, was asked in the House May 16 by Rep. Fish of New York.

Too many football captains have been resigning from the Academy, Rep. Fish said, citing the cases of Garbisch and others.

"Young men who wish to play football find themselves up against semi-professionals," he added.

Rep. Fish expressed the wish that West Point change its eligibility rules and play Annapolis next year.

Navy Bill Nears Vote

of what the proposed London treaty will cost the United States in money, provided we insist upon building up to the limitations within the treaty and construe the limitations as an obligation to build.

"Turning to battleships, it would mean that the three that are to be decommissioned would be kept in full commission to the last day possible under the terms of the treaty—one year in the case of two ships and 18 months in the case of the other.

"It would mean an urge to permit reckless expenditure under the guise of modernization upon any or all of the remaining battleships.

"It would mean an obligation to construct 69,000 tons of aircraft carriers.

"It would mean an obligation not only to construct all the 8-inch gun cruisers that the treaty permits but in addition 73,000 tons of the 6-inch gun cruisers over and above what we have today.

"In the matter of destroyers it would be possible to replace 150,000 tons and between 20,000 and 25,000 tons of submarines.

"More than that, it would be possible, and, of course, those who are urging the ever-expanding program would insist that it is necessary, to provide one-fourth of our 6-inch gun cruisers with landing decks for aircraft. By implication we would need to add possibly 2,000 airplanes to our aircraft program in order to supply the airplanes that would be necessary for aircraft carriers and the aviation complements possessed by other types.

"Rough estimates of what this building program would cost run from $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 between now and 1936. That period of time is little more than six years. It would mean an annual naval construction program of $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 for the United States for fighting types of craft.

"From the standpoint of national finances, I submit, there can be no justification for any such expenditure of money."

During the discussion that was carried on by Rep. French and Rep. Britten following Mr. French's statement, the latter asked the Illinois representative if he did not think that what is done in Congress would be reflected in the British parliament, to which Mr. Britten replied:

"I must recall what transpired at the Washington conference as a matter of history. The gentleman from Idaho himself was there, and I know I was down in the Daughters of the American Revolution Building when Balfour, representing King George, came over here and slapped himself on the chest in that characteristic manner of his, and turning to Secretary Hughes, said, 'The spirit of this 5-5 agreement, applying only to ships of the first line, will be carried down to the various categories.'

"Then he went back to England and what happened? They immediately started the construction of the greatest cruiser program the world has ever seen.

"In connection with this London conference I may say also that it is not a question of spirit but a question of agreement. We can not lead Great Britain into disarmament, and we can not lead Japan into disarmament by ourselves taking the lead. That is a false policy. We must have a Navy second to none on earth, a Navy commensurate with our position in world affairs, if we would induce naval limitation. So long as we are inferior there will be no honest attempts at disarmament."

The bill was taken up again on Monday, Tuesday and Friday of this week.
